Russians Declare Raid Setback For Germans

Second Night Bombing Of Moscow Beaten Off; Ground Attack Stalled

MOSCOW, July 23.—(AP)—A second successive night of Nazi aerial attacks on Moscow left scores killed and injured, but the Russians declared today the raids were another setback for the Germans and indicated that German ground forces had made no progress from their new edges inside the Finnish and Ukrainian frontiers.

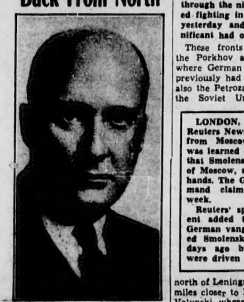

The Red army's mid-day bulletin reported stubborn battles through the night, but it mentioned fighting in the same zones as yesterday and said nothing significant had occurred elsewhere.

These fronts included not only the Porkhov and Smolensk areas, where German and Russian armies previously had been embattled, but also the Petrozavodsk region, inside the Soviet Union from Finland north of Leningrad, and Zhitomir, 80 miles closer to Kiev than Novograd Volynski, where the Red Army's resistance to the Nazi Ukrainian thrust had been centered.

Petrozavodsk and Zhitomir appeared for the first time in an early morning communique on yesterday's war developments and were repeated in the later bulletin, indi-

Back From North

W. M. Neal, Winnipeg, vice-president of western lines of the C. P. R., who returned to the city Wednesday from a tour of inspection of the mineral areas of the north. He is impressed with the potentialities of the Yellowknife district.

Rail Man Sees Development In North Minerals

Potentialities of the Yellowknife area as a valuable mineral-producing source far exceeded his expectations, W. M. Neal, vice-president, western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway, Winnipeg, declared here Wednesday on his return from an airplane trip north.

"I am sure that when this war is over and conditions resume normally, that advice to young men will not be as given by Horace Greeley to 'go west' but will be 'go north, young man, go north,'" said Mr. Neal.

"We had a very fine flight both ways," he said. "We were fortunate in having a tail wind and on the return flight here Tuesday we covered the 750 miles in four hours and 15 minutes."

TO YELLOWKNIFE

Mr. Neal left Cooking Lake at 9 a.m. Monday and flew by United Air Services by way of McMurray to Yellowknife. "We had every opportunity of viewing the mining development, as the sun was still shining at 12:15 a.m.," he said.

He was particularly impressed with the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company mine. He said he gathered much information regarding actual results and prospects for the future.

"When one considers that all this development has taken place in four years, including much construction, including the difficult power line from the Yellowknife rapids and river to Yellowknife itself, I think it is marvellous," he said. "So far as I can judge the potentialities are as great as can be expected and have far exceeded my expectations."

It was his first trip to the Yellowknife area.

WHITEHORSE TRIP

Mr. Neal said that later this week he hoped to fly over the Yukon Southern Air Transport to Whitehorse.

The C.P.R. recently acquired controlling interests in both these companies and Mr. Neal is familiarizing himself with the routes and travel arrangements.

He spoke enthusiastically of the north and its prospects for the future.

Today's War Moves

By British United Press

AFTER 32 days of what is being called history's greatest battles, over the longest front ever known, Adolf Hitler's great war machine has not succeeded in breaking Russia's resistance.

It is making some progress, but despite conflictions in the claims of both sides, it is obvious that the advance has been considerably slowed and the rate is not one-half what it was. That is partly due to the fact that the earlier phase of the campaign carried the Germans through territory less well defended than the present field of battle, but there probably are other elements.

One is the fierce fighting spirit of the Russians and their ability to counter-attack. Another is their ability to keep their three main armies in orderly units despite losses, and to retreat slowly and in good order, instead of being put to confused flight, as the German high command had expected.

TIME TABLE UPSET

The German time table seems without doubt to have been upset. It may be that this second phase of

Canadian National President Resigns

S. J. Hungerford, left, has resigned as president of the Canadian National Railways and Trans-Canada Air Lines, it was announced Wednesday. He is succeeded by R. C. Vaughan, centre, as president of the C.N.R., by H. J. Symington, K.C., right, in the presidency of T. C. A.

LONDON, July 23—(CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Moscow said today it was learned on good authority that Smolensk, 230 miles west of Moscow, still is in Russian hands. The German high command claimed its fall last week.

Reuters' special correspondent added that it was true German vanguards had reached Smolensk's outskirts some days ago but he said they were driven away.

Resignation Of S. J. Hungerford Is Announced

MONTREAL, July 22. — (CP)— W. H. Hobbs, secretary of the Canadian National Railways, today announced on behalf of the board of directors the resignation of S. J. Hungerford as president of the system.

The announcement said R. C. Vaughan, now vice-president in charge of purchases, stores, and steamships, has been appointed to succeed Mr. Hungerford as president of the system, including the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships, Limited, Canadian Government Merchant Marine, Limited, and other subsidiary and affiliated companies. The appointment takes effect tomorrow.

Mr. Hungerford will remain chairman of the board of the railway.

At the same time, it was announced that Mr. Hungerford has resigned as president of Trans-Canada Airlines and that H. J. Symington, K.C., of Montreal, a director of the organization since its inception, will succeed him as T.C.A. president.

ASKS YOUNGER OFFICER

A statement issued by the C.N.R. board of directors in connection with the announcements said:

"In submitting his resignation to the board Mr. Hungerford stated: 'The responsibilities and activities of the Canadian National system are continually expanding, and the war has brought many new problems affecting the whole range of the railway's work. I feel that it is advisable that we take steps at this time designed to ensure continuity of executive judgment and action not only through the present times of stress but also in the years ahead, and this can best be done in my opinion by the appointment now of

R.A.F. Bombers Roar Out Over Channel In Another Day Offensive

LONDON, July 23.—(CP)—A German coastal vessel was sunk and others damaged in a series of Royal Air Force raids on German shipping today. Intense raids were made also against the Nazi-held coasts of France and the Low Countries. Objectives near St. Omer, in France, were attacked.

The R.A.F. lost 10 planes and five German fighters were shot down.

R.A.F. bombers too high to be seen, but with a roar indicating they were in mighty force, swarmed across the Channel today.

The French, and possibly the Belgium and Netherlands, coasts apparently were the targets of these attacks following a second straight night in which the air ministry announced the German industrial cities of Frankfurt and Mannheim were hit.

A few minutes after the day raiders crossed in glinting sunlight, the deep-voiced rumble of anti-aircraft guns and the crash of bombs echoed back to the British coast.

FAR UP RHINE

The night raids far up the Rhine valley were delivered despite severe thunderstorms, the air communique said.

It was the second straight night these cities had been attacked.

NEW YORK, July 23.—(AP)—Turkish anti-aircraft batteries shot down a German plane apparently reconnoitering near the Thrace border with Greece and Bulgaria, the NCB correspondent in Ankara reported Tuesday night. The three German crew members were killed.

Ottawa Reduces Consumption Of Pork Products

OTTAWA, July 23—(CP)—Canadians will be eating less pork products, for the next two months at least, because of a three-way government move to speed shipment of Dominion bacon to the United Kingdom.

Behind the new steps is a request of the British ministry of food that, if possible, the present Canada-United Kingdom contract for 425,000,000 pounds of bacon, hams and other cuts be completed by about Sept. 15 instead of Oct. 21 as originally scheduled

CUT BY 25 P.C.

In an effort to ensure the reaching of this objective, Agriculture Minister Gardiner made these announcements last night:

1—The amount of pork products, including ham and bacon, that may be distributed for Canadian consumption by exporting packers is to be reduced by 25 per cent.

2—Live hogs, dressed hogs and other edible pork products, excepting lard, may not be exported to points other than the United

Britain, U.S. Plan To Freeze Japan's Assets

By FREDERICK KUH

LONDON, July 23—(BUP)—Usually well informed financial quarters received intimations today that Great Britain and the United States were making preparations to freeze Japanese assets, either arbitrarily or as a reprisal in event of a Japanese blow at French Indo-China.

Diplomatic quarters had reported previously that Britain and America, after full discussion, had agreed on measures to be taken in event that Japan seized new bases in Indo-China.

EXCLUSIVE

These informants, predicting that Japan would strike within two or three days to seize the Cam Ranh naval base and other strategic areas, had suggested that as a first move Britain and the United States might impose rigid restrictions on goods which Japan needs.

MIGHT RECONSIDER

Some experts suggested that in view of the reports of possible freezing of Japanese assets that the Japanese government, which it was assumed would have received information through its own channels, might reconsider its position.

Any reprisals against a Japanese domination of that southeastern corner of Asia would menace British and American interests directly.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden took note in the House of Commons today of indications of an imminent Japanese move in the Far East, warning Tokyo to keep hands off Thailand and underlining Britain's lack of designs on either Thailand or Indo-China.

It was believed here that unlike the Vichy attitude in Syria, the Vichy government and Vichy authorities here would give in to Japan.

25,000 FRENCH TROOPS

Informants estimated that there were about 25,000 French soldiers in the Indo-Chinese forces and 20,000 natives and that another 50,000 men could be mobilized.

Diplomats here inclined to believe that Japan might not strike at Siberia for the present, if only because of Russia's strong forces there.

Dud Bomb Of Nazis Contains Note Inside

LONDON, July 22.—(CP)—Moscow radio, heard in London, told how only two of six German bombs exploded when dropped on a Russian frontier town. In one of the four which failed to explode was a piece of paper on which were the words, in a woman's handwriting: "We help you as much as we can."

French Invitation For Japanese Guarantee Of Sovereignty Expected

By RALPH HEINZEN

VICHY, July 23.—(BUP)—France has no objection to granting Japanese demands for temporary occupation of military bases in French Indo-China if French sovereignty is not impaired, a spokesman for the Vichy government said tonight.

VICHY, July 23.—(BUP)—Diplomatic quarters said today that France and Japan were discussing a Japanese "request" for "guarantees" should there be a British-Free French-Chinese attack on French Indo-China. The same quarters previously had said there was no tension between Vichy and Tokyo over Indo-China.

Observers believed that as a result of current discussions, Japan might be "invited" to occupy strategic naval and air bases in southern Indo-China "to safeguard French sovereignty" under an arrangement similar to that under which Japan already holds control of Northern Indo-China.

Newspapers in unoccupied France did not mention the Indo-China situation but the German-controlled Paris Soir published dispatches asserting that a plot, providing for a British-Free French-Chinese attack on Indo-China had been uncovered.

"It was learned today that a secret convention has been signed between England and Chiang Kai-Shek providing for the occupation of Indo-China," the Paris Soir reported.

Parallel negotiations are in progress at Hanoi between Governor-General Jean Decoux and the Japanese military mission.

The official Vichy position was that since Japan is "the principal country interested in the peaceful order in the Orient" the Vichy

$25,000 Loss For Blaze At Spruce Grove

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

SPRUCE GROVE, July 23.—Three families are homeless and property damage estimated at approximately $25,000 resulted in a fire that swept through the main business section of this town, 18 miles west of Edmonton, shortly after 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The fire started in a stock of bindertwine at the rear of Ted Leitch's garage. Flames speedily gutted the garage and then swept through the adjoining building, housing Kelly's general store, which was also a complete loss. Callihan's Cafe was also wiped out.

Firemen from Edmonton No. 8 hall, under the direction of Fire Chief James Macgregor, responded to a call for assistance.

BLOCK SAVED

Speedy and effective work by the Edmonton fire-fighting crew, who attacked the flames with chemicals, made possible the saving of the large two-storey block owned by Mrs. P. Schwindt. This building was well ablaze before the Edmonton fire equipment arrived, but good work by the firemen resulted in the fire being extinguished after a considerable amount of damage had been done to the roof.

Russia Claims Nazis Intend To Spread Gas

MOSCOW, July 23.—(BUP)—Russia charges that the Germans—baffled in their repeated attempts to smash through the Soviet lines—are getting ready to use poison gas. According to Moscow—the German high command has dispatched special units—trained in the use of gas—to the eastern front.

Dies In Crash

Sgt. Pilot Dennis J. Young, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Young of 9712 98 avenue, who died in the flaming ruins of a Harvard trainer plane when it crashed near Mountainview, Ont., Tuesday night. "Denny" was a prominent athlete and youth worker in the city before joining the R.C.A.F. last August.

City Airman Is Killed In Plane Crash

BELLEVILLE, Ont., July 23.—(CP)—A Royal Canadian Air Force pilot, Sgt. D. J. Young of Edmonton, died in the flaming ruins of a Harvard trainer plane when it crashed in flames on the farm of James K. Anderson near Montainview late Tuesday night. Young, member of the personnel of the Trenton station, was reported in night flying, when the accident occurred.

Thirteen-year-old Evan Bovay, who lives near the Anderson farm, heard the roar of the plane and a second later a terrific crash. The boy, lying in bed, dashed to the window and saw the glow of the burning plane in the Anderson field. He notified his parents and they raced to the scene of the accident.

MASS OF FLAMES

"The plane was a mass of flames when we arrived," Mrs. Bovay said. "The heat was terrific and we could not get very close to the plane. A few minutes later Air Force fire trucks and ambulances arrived on the scene."

VICTIM RECEIVED WINGS THIS SPRING

Sgt. Pilot Dennis Young, 21, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Young, of 9712 98 avenue. He received his wings in the R.C.A.F. at a Calgary ceremony this spring. Born in Edmonton, Denny was educated at Bennett and Strathcona high schools. Prior to his enlistment last August he was employed at the provincial government buildings here.

He is a former member of the Maple Leaf junior hockey and lacrosse teams, and was a prominent worker in local Y.M.C.A. groups. Two brothers, Leslie, 19, with the R.C.N. and John, 23, with the R.C.A.F. are also well-known here. Their father is a car inspector with the C.N.R.

Arrangements for a funeral service here have not yet been completed.

Casey's Tale of a "Bobby" Who Had a Tryst With Fate

Casey's notable series on his experiences through 22 months of the current World War II, perhaps the longest period of uninterrupted service known to any contemporary North American correspondent. He had linkers-arms with death through the low countries, through France, England, the Middle East—and in the stygian night of the North Atlantic.—EDITOR.

ROB CASEY

I WAS buried somewhere in the Ritz dining room when the clunk fell and I wasn't aware of it until I stumbled out and discovered the red lamps at the end of the arcade and the white rope stretching across Piccadilly. The bomb came down somewhere on the Green Park side of the road—a time bomb, of course—something that would go right on reminding us of Hitler for days possibly a sort of military rosemary. Well, the rope meant that the A.R.P. had put a block on Piccadilly. They meant also that to reach the Athenaeum Court down at the foot of the hill I should have to start on a detour by way of Berkeley Square, where because of other time bombs the nightingales had ceased to sing many weeks before.

Berkeley Square, of course, would be only the beginning. For it was the custom in these impromptu treks to meet other time bombs and make detours about the original detour, and so on. That is what had made night riding in taxicabs interesting when it was still possible to find a taxicab). You groped your way into the cab, felt carefully about the interior to make sure that you weren't about to sit down on anybody alive or dead, and then settled back for an experience like blind-man's-buff on wheels or an endless journey through the "Tunnel of Love."

It was pitch dark in this sector, once you had left the Piccadilly crossing light behind you, I stepped down off the curb on the supposition that the debris hazard might be smaller in the middle of the street, and there I ran squarely into the end of a parked car.

I wasn't certain at first that it was a parked car. I didn't know what it was until I began to analyze the pain in my legs where I had collided with the rear bumper. I naturally cursed the thoughtlessness of anybody who'd block a highway like this. Then I found exactly why the car was there. Most of a house had fallen across it . . . and not so long ago. I found out as I tried to make some headway toward the Mayfair Hotel or Landsdowne House, the radiator was still warm.

There was no chance of passing this barrier on the sidewalk — the rubble seemed to be about seven feet high in that direction. And there was a hole in the middle of the street. I couldn't tell how deep. I guess that in spite of other considerations I must have been a little interested in the causes of things; because I carried away the impression that the bomb had gone off in the middle of the street and that the walls of the house had slid into the resulting vacuum. I found great pleasure in rolling that around in my mind. It seemed so scientific and detached.

THE CUSTOMARY SMELLS

There was the customary smell about this region—cordite, illuminating gas, sulphur and plaster dust. It occurred to me as I began to cough that the atmosphere in here was probably so thick that I shouldn't have been able to see through it even in daylight. And then something else struck me forcibly. This must have been an explosion worth mention even in London. . . . And what was anybody doing about it?

Almost at the same time I became aware that everything had been done that could be done until morning. There were voices back in the depths of the shadows, voices giving familiar orders, and there were sounds of drifting rubble and breaking wood and nails wrenched loose and similar echoes of A.R.P. activity. More pertinently I suddenly heard the quick, competent command of a policeman. I didn't know he was

MORALE OF NAZI PRISONERS LOWER IN RECENT WEEKS

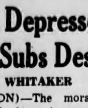

Many Feel That Invasion Of Britain Now Impossible

Captured German U-Boat Commanders Depressed By Number Of Subs Destroyed

By JOHN T. WHITAKER

LONDON, July 23.—(CDN)—The morale of German prisoners has been found to be lower in recent weeks, this correspondent learned today from an informed Briton who added, significantly, that the quality of Nazi prisoners taken recently by the British is also lower.

Nazi merchant seamen and soldiers who have fallen into British hands lately, like the recently captured Luftwaffe pilots, this informant said, are less impressive generally than were Adolf Hitler's first elite.

WHITAKER

The spirit of the Germans was very high last fall until the Nazis realized that invasion of the British Isles was being abandoned, this source said. Now many of the prisoners feel that invasion is becoming impossible and they prove less truculently sure of their own propaganda.

Three of Germany's best submarine commanders and their crews have been taken in the past two months. Though they rank high among the elite Nazis, their morale is extraordinarily low, this source said. They are depressed both by the number of German submarines the British are destroying and by the fact that their own sinking of British shipping is less effective.

HIDE U-BOAT LOSSES

The German high command tries to hide even from the submarine crews the extent of the U-boat losses. When attacking together submarines are in wireless communication with one another, but the captains and wireless operators are forbidden to inform the crews when another submarine no longer answers signals.

Similarly, crews are forbidden to discuss where any lose. The prisoners indicate that despite these rules, all submarine crews know of losses and feel them to be too severe.

Furthermore, the Germans are said to feel that the Battle of the Atlantic is going too slowly. Their own figures of British losses are inflated and the crews know this. Even those who still believe their own figures, feel that the present rate of sinkings means too heavy a toll of their own submarines.

CREWS MUTINIED

There is no tendency here to suggest that a similar movement has come again, but it is recalled that it was submarine crews who mutinied that started the German collapse in the last World War.

Observers here, moreover, that German morale will suffer further from the Russian war, both because of the inherent confusion and because of the inevitably heavy death lists.

Gasoline Price Will Be Fixed By Controller

TORONTO, July 23.—(CP)—Fixing of wholesale and retail gasoline prices is under consideration by the oil controller, G. R. Cottrelle, and when a sound basis for the plan is worked out it will be put into effect.

Making this announcement at a press conference today, J. L. Stewart, the deputy oil controller, said: "It is the intention of the oil controller to fix the wholesale and retail prices which will govern the spread to the dealer, and to establish zones that will, in our opinion, be more equitable."

NO REQUEST YET

Mr. Stewart said that no request has yet gone out to the provinces asking them to reduce speed limits. "I don't know," he answered when queried as to this possibility.

He said that under the War Measures Act the federal government could effect a speed control limit in the provinces but "we have found the provinces very willing to cooperate in any measures".

PEOPLE RESPONDING

Questioned as to the effect of the new restrictive regulations in the first two days, Mr. Stewart said that "any reaction we have is that the people generally are responding to only request." Unofficial reports indicated there was generally a reduction in motorists' speed. There had been no reports of breaches of sell-gasoline regulations, prohibiting sale of gasoline and oil between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Mr. Stewart said that consideration of applications for gasoline for emergency purposes which might arise is under consideration.

Train Crash On C.P.R. Main Line Kills Engineer

SCHREIBER, Ont., July 23—(CP)—Railway workmen today cleared wreckage and allowed traffic to proceed on the Canadian Pacific Railway's main line a few hours after two trans-continental passenger trains collided head-on yesterday at Tripoli, 118 miles east of here, causing the death of one engineer and injury to four other railwaymen, all of Chapleau, Ont.

The trains, one en route to Vancouver, and the other heading for Toronto and Montreal, met a short distance from a siding and the force of the impact derailed the eastbound locomotive, two empty baggage cars and two express cars.

Engineer Percy Buncombe, about 55, died a short time after he was pulled from the wreckage of his eastbound locomotive, while a male, Fireman John Read, was injured, apparently not seriously.

Engineer Jack Corston was found in critical condition while Fireman George Weedon, with Corston aboard the westbound flier, also was injured. The other railwayman, aboard a baggage car, suffered scalp wounds. His identity was not immediately learned.

Japanese Move To Indo-China Is Looked For

French are conferring with her over the threat to a country to which the Japanese have given guarantees.

HANOI, French Indo-China, July 23—(AP)—It was generally accepted here today that Japan has made sweeping demands for further concessions in southern Indo-China and that the Vichy French virtually have accepted.

LONDON, July 23 — (CP) — A Reuters news agency dispatch from Hanoi, French Indo-China, said today it had been confirmed officially that the Japanese Ambassador at Vichy has demanded the use of facilities in southern Indo-China.

The details of the Japanese demands are yet available, the dispatch said, but it is known that Sotomatsu Kato, Japan's envoy at Vichy, has been in contact with Vice-Premier Jean Darlan.

Japan already holds air bases in northern Indo-China and has troops garrisoned at Hanoi, the capital, and Haiphong, chief northern port. Persistent reports have indicated that she would ask for similar footholds at Saigon, chief city of the south, and perhaps Camranh Bay naval base on the southeast coast of Indo-China.

The British government took cognizance of the Indo-China crisis when Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told parliament today that the government are aware of persistent reports to the effect that the Japanese government intend to take action to obtain naval and air bases in southern Indo-China."

In a written reply to a member's question, Mr. Eden continued:

"These reports are the more significant since they coincide with a Japanese press campaign of innuendo against Great Britain in respect of both Indo-China and Thailand.

"I welcome this opportunity to state that the alleged designs of Great Britain in both these countries are entirely non-existent."

By CLARK LEE

SHANGHAI, July 23—(AP)—The predominant opinion among observers today was that Japan was pushing military preparations for action both in south-eastern Asia and in the north. A move into French Indo-China was expected to come first with foreign military quarters expressing the opinion it would start a week or two.

They suggested it would consist of occupation of Saigon and other strategic points. Indo-China points followed by demands for bases and economic concessions.

The Japanese probably will put pressure on Thailand to give her an air base from which to bomb the Burma road, these sources said, and attempt to dam the flow of United States war materials to Chungking.

FEAR FIGHT U.S.

The Japanese were reported to fear United States aid might reach such proportions that Japan and the United States would be engaged in open if undeclared war on Chinese soil.

Japanese troops, planes and ships were reported already concentrated at Hainan for the expected Indo-China move, and fleet transports were standing by near the mouth of the Pearl river.

Independently of these preparations, Japan's North China and Kwantung armies were reported getting ready for action.

Some troops were believed already sent to Manchukuo and Inner Mongolia, while others withdrawn from Hopeh and Shansi, were reported concentrating near Peiping.

READY HIT RUSSIA

Indications were seen that if Russia should collapse, the Kwantung and North China armies would not miss the opportunity to drive Soviet forces out of the Maritime provinces and end a menace reportedly regarded as a nightmare of Japanese military authorities for the past 25 years.

Many Japanese officers claimed that Russia already was defeated because it had committed strategic suicide by throwing a majority of its reserves into the front-line fighting and failing to prepare for counter-attacks.

VICHY MAY MAKE DEAL WITH JAPAN

VICHY, France, July 23.—(AP)—Some quarters close to the government considered it likely today that France and Japan might reach an understanding for the technical protection of French Indo-China by the Japanese.

(The Japanese press has been conducting an editorial campaign charging that the Chinese, British and following the French Leader Gen. Charles de Gaulle are preparing to invade Indo-China.

(Governor-General Admiral Jean Decoux of Indo-China is conferring with Japanese military authorities at Hanoi, the territory's capital, but the nature of their talks has not been made public.

Foreign observers expressed the opinion that Japan has been exerting pressure here and in Indo-China to effect an understanding which would give the Japanese bases in the territory.

DIPLOMATIC OBJECTIONS

Some quarters here expected Vichy would raise nothing but diplomatic objections to occupation of Indo-China key cities by the Japanese.

The conversations between Vichy and Japan over Indo-China were understood to be based on the Japanese guarantee of the integrity of all Indo-Chinese frontiers" given after Japan mediated hostilities between Thailand and Indo-China.

It was recalled that a protocol attached to the peace treaty with Thailand bound Vichy to do nothing to oppose Japanese interests in the colony, directly or indirectly.

TOKYO, July 23—(AP)—Domei, Japanese news agency, said today the Emperor's privy council would meet in extraordinary session before the end of the week to discuss "various questions" confronting Japan.

The councillors met at the palace today with the Emperor and all members of the cabinet for the first time since Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye formed his new cabinet last week.

WASHINGTON, July 23—(AP)—The Japanese embassy said today it had received a report, which lacked official confirmation, that Japan and the French Vichy government had reached an agreement on Indo-China. An official of the embassy declined to give the origin of the report.

Japan already holds air bases in the northern part of the far east French possession and there have been widespread reports she also wanted footholds in the south and perhaps on the southeast coast.

Foreign military quarters in Shanghai have declared Japan was girding to invade Indo-China within a week.

Senator Tom Connally (Dem., Texas) suggested today that one reason the United States was permitting exports of oil to Japan was that otherwise the Japanese might seize the Netherlands East Indies to obtain a petroleum supply.

a younger officer to be chief executive of the system."

"The board accepted Mr. Hungerford's resignation with regret but were gratified that he would remain as chairman of the board and that the Canadian National Railways would therefore continue to have the benefit of his great experience and knowledge of the affairs of the system. The board recognized that the expanding activities of the railway resulting from the war had added greatly to Mr. Hungerford's already heavy duties, and that, freed of some of these duties, he would be enabled to devote particular attention to the railway's war work in many and varied fields.

HEADS MUNITIONS

"In such connection it is noted that he will continue as president of National Railways Munitions, Limited. The board record their appreciation of the debt of gratitude which Canada and the National system owe to Mr. Hungerford, whose outstanding constructive and operating abilities have played so important a part in the development of the system.

"The directors of the National system are fortunate in being able to announce the appointment to the presidency of an officer having the exceptional qualifications for the vast position held by Mr. R. C. Vaughan. Mr. Vaughan's railway career extends over some 42 years. During 38 years of service with the Canadian National Railways and predecessor companies he has occupied many responsible posts and is thoroughly familiar with all phases of the activities of the organization. He has been a vice-president of the railway since 1920, when appointing Mr. Vaughan to the chief executive office the directors look forward with confidence to the continued development and success of the National system."

STARTED AS BOY

Mr. Vaughan, the new C.N.R. president, was born in Toronto 57 years ago and started his railway career on the ground floor—as a messenger boy with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. He was just 14 years old at that time.

Four years later, in 1906, he went to the old Grand Trunk Railway after having been promoted to the post of a stenographer with the C.P.R. In 1904, he was appointed secretary to the vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Northern. In 1910, he was appointed assistant to the vice-president and general manager and given charge of the operation of the Royal line steamers trading from Montreal to the United Kingdom.

When the Canadian Northern was amalgamated into the Canadian National system in 1918 Mr. Vaughan was appointed assistant to the president of the C.N.R. and assistant to the president of the Canadian government merchant marine. In 1920, he was made vice-president in charge of purchases and stores, the position he now relinquishes.

DOLLAR-A-YEAR MAN

When the Canadian government set up its defence purchasing boards in July, 1939, Mr. Vaughan was appointed as a dollar-a-year man and held the post for six months until the ministry of supply was set up. Mr. Vaughan was married in 1908 to Rosalie Cheadle of Toronto. They have two sons and two daughters.

Mr. Symington, the new T.C.A. president, was born at Sarnia, Ont., in 1881. Graduating from the Osgoode Hall law school in Toronto in 1904 he was called to the Manitoba bar in the same year. He was solicitor for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from 1906 to 1909.

Mr. Symington was made a director of the T.C.A. in 1936 and of T.C.A. in 1937. His home is in Montreal.

Mr. Hungerford's railway career covers a 55-year period dating back to 1886 when, at the age of 14, he entered the machine shop of the South Eastern Railway, now part of the C.P.R. at Farnham Que., as an apprentice machinist. He was born near Bedford, Que., in 1872.

WORKED AT CALGARY

In 1894 Mr. Hungerford became chargeman of the C.P.R.'s Windsor Street Station in Montreal. In 1903, he was appointed master mechanic at Calgary and later made superintendent of all Winnipeg shops.

Mr. Hungerford joined the old Canadian Northern Railway in 1910 as superintendent of rolling stock at Winnipeg. In 1914, he was given the same post in Toronto and in 1917 was made general manager of the system's eastern lines. When the C.N.R. was formed in 1918, Mr. Hungerford was appointed assistant vice-president of operating, maintenance and construction. In 1922, he was made general manager of the system.

When Sir Henry Thornton resigned as president of the C.N.R. in 1932, Mr. Hungerford was appointed acting president. In 1936 the appointment was confirmed and he was made chairman of the board of directors.

Russians Again Beat Off Nazi Aerial Attack

cating that fighting at these new points still was indecisive.

Again last night, Russians declared Moscow's defences beat off ruin from the skies and the Germans failed to burn out this camouflaged capital of painted spires and teeming millions.

Scores were killed and wounded. Some fires flared up. A few homes and a hospital were altered in the places hit. But in the main the night-long assault by 150 German bombers was pictured as a fizzle by a Soviet communique.

It said 10 per cent of the raiders were shot down and only a few pierced the searchlight patterns and bursting barrages to reach the central city.

GERMANS CHECKED

Reports from the long land front, meanwhile, declared the Nazi onrush still checked in the vital central section of Porikov and Smolensk, but acknowledged German-Finnish penetrations in the north and indicated Nazi thrusts into the Ukraine might have deepened.

Moscow's 4,000,000 seemingly took the raid stoically, as they did the night before, filing into shelters and the protection of the city's subway system at the warning whine of sirens.

Throughout the alarm fire watchers stood their rooftop posts in relays, ready to deal with incendiaries.

Fire brigades quickly extinguished the fires touched off by bombs, the Soviet information bureau said. It declared "no military objectives were damaged."

RAIDERS DOWNED

A preliminary tally indicated 15 raiders downed, compared with 22 the night before when more than 200 German planes attacked the city.

Altogether, a Moscow communique today said, 39 German planes were shot down yesterday and last night. Loss of 17 Russian planes was acknowledged.

The day before the Germans lost 87 planes on all fronts to 14 Russian aircraft destroyed, the Russians said.

LONDON, July 23—(CP)—Continuing German advances in the far north sector of the Russian front were indicated today in reports reaching London, authoritative sources said.

Soviet troops apparently had withdrawn behind the Russian-Finnish war frontier and the Germans were believed making "small progress" in the Pskov region.

It was believed here the Germans would attempt to capture Leningrad by infiltration rather than by frontal attack.

GERMANS CLAIMING ENCIRCLING ADVANCES

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG, JR.

BERLIN, July 23—(UP)—The German high command today reported fierce and bloody Soviet counter-attacks and break-through attempts by encircled troops but asserted the Russians had been beaten off at all points and that German forces are sweeping forward in new encircling advances.

The Nazi luftwaffe was said to have delivered another crushing air attack upon Moscow and upon communications lines in the Smolensk-Leningrad-Moscow triangle.

The official news agency D.N.B. claimed that northeast of Zhitomir German troops encircled the remnants of "several" Soviet divisions and killed 4,000 Russian troops, wounded many and took many prisoners.

At another unspecified region of the central front it was claimed that many prisoners were taken from 18 different Soviet divisions, apparently survivors of badly smashed Russian fighting units.

DIVERSION ATTACKS

The high command said that the Russians were attempting to launch "diversion" counter-attacks, presumably to relax pressure of the main German drives, but all these attempts were said to have failed.

(The Nazi high command a week ago Saturday claimed that the ability of the Russian armies to counter-attack had been smashed. Repeatedly Nazi spokesmen have claimed that the Soviet armies had been reduced to a state in which they were unable to launch counter-strokes against the German advance.)

German informants said strong German airplane forces attacked "military objectives" in a raid on Moscow during the night and that returning pilots reported extensive large fires.

The high command said in its communique that the raid caused further heavy destruction and that great quantities of "heavy and heaviest calibre" explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped.

LUFTWAFFE FORCE

Informed German sources described the Luftwaffe force sent against Moscow last night as "strong." They said that the raid was on about the same scale as that of the previous night and that some fires started the night before still were burning last night.

Heavy raids were also said to have been carried out against the railroad stations at Leningrad and in the Novogrod area, south of Leningrad, causing much damage.

The official news agency DNB said a German Panzer division in the region south of Kiev had wiped out a Russian tank formation, destroying 92 Russian tanks.

But P. C. Redding Won't Be Back: He Was Killed By Fragment From Bomb

a policeman then. But I suspected it. He had the air of knowing what to do in any circumstances.

"Crater ahead of you," he said simply. "Turn right three paces, then left. There's a bit of sidewalk there . . . It's clear."

HE FOLLOWS INSTRUCTIONS

I followed instructions and presently came alongside him. He reached out a hand to guide me over a crevasse which I couldn't see at all but which appeared to be perfectly visible to him.

"I'll walk along with you to the end of the street," he said. And thus began my acquaintance with Police Constable Redding.

The night, one discovered in the blind trek through the next 200 yards of blackout, was full of noise and peril. A couple of hundred planes were over—the noise of the bombs rolled and rumbled all across London—and the sky was twinkling with the distant blue-white stars of the ack-ack shells. The fragments were tumbling down as usual, some of them while hot, some of them black, clink, clank on the near-by pavement. It occurred to me that policemen on night duty in the blackout have a pretty tough time of it.

"This soup is pretty thick tonight," I said. "Doesn't it make you nervous to have to stay out in it?"

"There are safer jobs," he said simply. "But you get used to this sort of thing after a while. . . . Gerry gives you lots of practice . . . 'some day these things may delight you . . .' and he quoted the tag line from Vergil. That was a surprising as it sounds. You expect such things from London cops. But it encouraged a bit of conversation.

BLAST TOWARD PICCADILLY

We turned across Berkeley Square and through a twisting byway that led toward Park Lane. There was a terrific blast over toward Piccadilly Circus as we picked our way across the debris left by a recent time bomb. But we didn't go back to investigate Constable Redding had business at a point in Half Moon street or Dover street or somewhere and he was philosophical about his duties.

"You get bombs enough of your own to worry about without interfering with other people's," he said. "There's no use being selfish. There are always enough crumps to go around." He was silent for a moment and you could hear the horrible crunch of sliding masonry, the creak of tortured wood and the eternal jingle of falling glass. Here as on the other side of the square the iron chunks of the ack-ack shells rained down from the dark sky.

"Promotions ought to be rapid in a mess like this," I said. And I was grim enough about what seemed to be an obvious truth. In a routine like this any policeman should have been certain of promotion if he could contrive to have a little more than ordinary luck. But my friend P. C. Redding wasn't sure about it.

"You don't know about it," he said. "I take it you're a Canadian or a Yank. And you get your information about the Metropolitan police from the detective stories."

VIEW IS PARTLY TRUE

That, of course, was a fair indictment, but not complete. Any American who read the newspaper editorials on the Gestapo or the F.B.I. or the Gay-pay-oo had been told repeatedly that promotions in the London police force were from the ranks and based on a combination of seniority and merit . . . that it was possible for any worthy young constable to go to the Hendon Police school and equip himself for high rank.

This, P. C. Redding declared, was academically true. He arrived at that point just as we came opposite Green Park and he went out into Piccadilly to warn a belated motorist away from the ropes of the time-bomb barrier. From time to time after that I caught glimpses of him as incendiaries burst beyond the park fence and parachute flares drifted lazily overhead. . . . The clunks were still coming down.

"That's the theory of it," he said when he had returned to the sidewalk. "But the practice is different. The lads from the public schools get the jobs. . . . Nothing illegal about it. . . . Nothing at all. They serve for a couple of weeks in the ranks. Then they go to the police school. Then they get the promotions. A lot of us who have fairly decent educations but no old school ties can go on doing point duty forever. That's how it is . . . I've often wondered if the police business is like that in the States . . ."

NOT MUCH DIFFERENT HERE

I said that I thought maybe it wasn't much different in spots. I said also that, recognizing the ill as a not unfamiliar American phenomenon, I could suggest a cure.

"You meet one kind of pull with another kind," I said. "You ought to get some politician to interest himself in the situation."

"Yes," he said. "I ought to get some politician to interest himself in the situation. But it's not likely to be done. I don't know any politicians. And I'm not likely to meet any of them out here in the soup."

"But I think something can be done about it," I said. And he laughed a little bit.

"Americans will try anything," he said. "But I don't think there's any use in trying this . . ."

There was a lot more conversation about the police and politics and the war, but nothing that changed the tenor of the evening. After about an hour I shook hands with him and went on down the hill to the Athenaeum Court. That was about 2 a.m Tuesday.

CALL ON M.P.

Wednesday I paid a call on an M.P. He was the only M.P. I knew in London, but he seemed to be the right one. He had influence and also some of the slants of an American congressman.

"Not a bad idea to get a row started about it in Commons," he agreed. "Take the people's mind off the bombing . . . Give 'em a chance to see that we're still concerned with everyday issues—such as happiness of policemen—still carrying on in the same old way in spite of everything Hitler can do to us . . . Also, it's only justice that policemen who work in conditions of extraordinary danger should receive recognition and thanks of the public . . . I shall make an issue of it. Tell your friend to come to me Monday."

Friday evening I went down to Dover. Saturday night I went over to the spot near the Green Park tube station where I had last seen P. C. Redding. He wasn't there. In his place I found an elderly man who looked at me queerly when I told him my business.

"No," he said. "Constable Redding won't be back. He was killed by a shell fragment last night."

New Device To Make Liquid Coal Is Found

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., July 23—(AP)—A new method of making liquid coal by which coal is dissolved more completely than ever before was reported today at Pennsylvania State College.

The new fluid, when 40 per cent of it is mixed with oil, makes a better fire than either coal or oil alone.

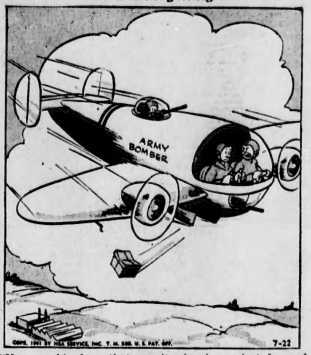

The liquid coal-oil fuel promises to increase the cruising range of ships. Although heat from coal generally is cheaper than from oil, it is possible to carry more of the latter fuel on shipboard because it permits better use of bunker space.

To make the liquid, bituminous coal is treated with acids. These extract what chemists sometimes call the coal substance, which is a complex mixture of hundreds of chemicals. The extraction gets rid of mineral matter and ash. In final form the coal substance is dissolved in Furfural, an inexpensive chemical available from agricultural wastes such as oat hulls, corn cobs, and bran.

Loan To Britain To Safeguard Her Property

LONDON, July 23—(CP)—Financial circles Tuesday interpreted the Washington announcement of a government loan of $425,000,000 to Great Britain to mean that Britain would not have to part with any more of her fixed investments in the United States.

The financial columnist of the Star wrote that it seemed evident the sale of American Viscose Corp. "will remain the solitary and sorry transmutative" of that type of operation.

(American Viscose Corp. one of the largest of Great Britain's property, or fixed, investments in the United States, was acquired several months ago by an American banking syndicate in a deal involving several hundred million dollars and later the shares were distributed to American investors.)

The Star's financial expert pointed out that the loan is to be secured in part by direct British investments, and added:

"It follows that no more of these investments will be sold outright to United States investors."

The Evening News said the loan was welcomed in financial London "as a valuable help to our war effort and also because the remaining British assets in the United States are to be pledged instead of being sold outright as in the case of American Viscose."

Ambassador Gives Thumbs-Up Salute

SANTA MONICA, Calif., July 23—(AP)—Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, broke into a wide smile and enthusiastically gave Great Britain's thumbs-up salute Tuesday as he watched 10 Douglas DB-7 dive bombers—intended for his country's use as "Havocs"—perform in his honor.

The ambassador, on a tour of west coast defence plants, told 8,000 Douglas workers:

"Germany has achieved many successes, yet our advices show that the people are not assured or satisfied. Why? They know, and Hitler knows, that unless they can destroy Britain's defences quickly they are bound to face ever-increasing aerial assault.

"The German people were promised two things: that their cities would not be bombed and that it would be a short war. Both promises have been proved wrong. Therefore, when Germany compules the date when air supremacy is lost forever—well, you can look for great things inside Germany."

German Patrol Reported "Safe" With Russians

LONDON, July 23—(CP)—The Moscow radio started its German broadcast last night with a call to Lieut. Hoernemann of the second company 372nd German infantry, to inform him that 15 men he sent on patrol July 18 were safe and well with the Red army and that he need not worry about them.

The announcer said the patrol, flying white flags, "stormed towards the Soviet, towards their freedom."

LONDON, July 23—(CP)—The George Medal was awarded to Sgt. Morris Bell of the Royal Air Force who, when a plane crashed and burst into flames, dashed into the burning wreckage, tore off his jacket and beat out flames which were enveloping the gasoline-soaked pilot, despite danger from exploding cartridges. The pilot later died.

Ships From Syria

VICHY, France, July 23—(AP)—Three French destroyers arrived Tuesday in Toulon from Syria, apparently having departed before the Vichy authorities promised in making an armistice with Britain that all French ships in the Syrian vicinity would be turned over to the Allies.

U.S. Navy Tells Of Sabotage In Several Bases

WASHINGTON, July 23.—(AP)—Senator David Walsh (Dem.-Massachusetts) reading what he said were confidential naval reports, told the Senate Tuesday that sabotage had caused a number of fires and industrial accidents in United States naval establishments in the last 12 months.

Walsh, chairman of the Senate naval committee, said the navy lacked exact knowledge as to the number of Communists and Nazis working in the navy yards, but added that the Daily Worker of New York, former official organ of the American Communist Party and still a mirror of official party views, has published "Brooklyn navy yard editions."

He described San Francisco as headquarters of Nazis in the United States, and said the navy estimated there were 400 Nazis on the west coast.

WOULD BE DISASTROUS

Arguing in support of a measure to establish a civilian protective guard for naval establishments, Walsh said "it would be disastrous if one of our battleships was blown up because of sabotage."

Although Walsh said the naval reports were confidential, the Senate galleries were well filled when he read from them.

Walsh said a $2,000,000 fire in a Philadelphia lumber yard that spread throughout the area near the shipyards in May was "believed to have been caused by sabotage."

A $150,000 blaze in the communications centre of Norfolk operating base, Walsh said, was "deliberately set and was an act of sabotage," according to the commandant of the 5th naval district.

CIVILIAN EMPLOYEES

The navy, he continued, had complained against 68 of the 16,000 civilian employees of the Boston naval yard as being friendly to Nazism or Communism, adding that the future possibility of sabotage there "depends upon the course of international events and the temper of the foreign authorities."

At Mare Island, on the west coast, he said, there are 18,000 civilian employees "and the danger of sabotage here lies in the fact the greatest number are of German and Italian extraction and that the headquarters of German espionage in the United States is located at San Francisco."

Legislation authorizing the secretary of the navy to establish a special force to investigate "any existing or threatened espionage or sabotage" in naval shore establishments was passed by the senate today 41 to 14.

Woodward Quits His Ottawa Post

VANCOUVER, July 23—(CP)—Col. W. C. Woodward, general assistant to Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of munitions and supply, announced here Tuesday that he has resigned his Ottawa post.

"Actually I tendered my resignation some time ago and it was accepted," he said "My only reason for leaving the office was that I felt I had accomplished what I set out to do.

"When I first went down to Ottawa to assist Mr. Howe, Canada's war effort was still in its preliminary stages. We had a pioneering job to do and we had to build up an organization capable of directing one of the most important phases of Canada's wartime activity.

"Since then I feel that we have made very real and effective progress."

Mr. Woodward, who is president of Woodward's Stores, Ltd., here, went to Ottawa a few months after the outbreak of war at the invitation of the Canadian government as Western Canada's representative on the War Supply Board.

Later he became executive assistant to Mr. Howe.

Food Supply Here Surprises Soubry

OTTAWA, July 23—(CP)—E. E. Soubry, director of trade for the British Petroleum Board, said Tuesday that since his arrival on this continent he has been most surprised by the "tremendous amount of food and the brilliant lights."

Soubry said in an interview that the day war was declared all gasoline and oil companies in Britain amalgamated and all trade names were destroyed, as a move to conserve tanker space. Then came rationing.

"The policing of the rationing law was performed by the people themselves, he said. "People stopped pleasure drives. As for taking children for a pleasure outing in a car, that definitely just wasn't done."

Britain is not now relying on the Middle East for oil supplies, he said.

"Today, with the dire necessity for economy in tanker transport, deliveries from Iraq and Iran are confined to economical hauls from these points," he said. "All such supplies for Great Britain are coming from the west, the shortest road to the United Kingdom."

City Man Bereaved

VANCOUVER, July 23—(CP)—Funeral services were held here Tuesday for Lillian Irene Parker, 40, who died Saturday. F. Parker of Calgary and R. F. Parker of Edmonton are brothers.

Helsinki Advised Relations Tense

LONDON, July 23 — (CP) — Lord Snell, deputy leader of the House of Lords, told the peers Tuesday that the British government had "left the Finnish government in no doubt" that Britain's friendly relations with Helsinki "might at any time be reversed in the light of events."

The British government, he said, "had of course ceased to issue navicerts for goods, and no facilities were being given for ships proceeding to that country."

Not until he brought down five places was a World War five known as an "ace."

"To submit themselves for medical examination and to undergo military training for a period of four months within Canada or the territorial waters thereof, and to report at such places and times and in such manner and in such authorities or persons as may be notified to them respectively by a Divisional Registrar of an Administrative Division."

Extract from Paragraph 4 of Proclamation.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS

designed to facilitate equitable conditions of mobilization

Deferring of Training Periods to Avoid Individual Hardship

If the Board is satisfied that the calling out of any man for military training will cause extreme hardship to those dependent upon such man, the Board may, from time to time, postpone the training period of the man: Provided that such man shall apply for a postponement order in accordance with the provisions of the regulations.

Postponement Applications Must be Made in Writing

No application for a postponement order may be made otherwise than in writing, by the man called out, to the Divisional Registrar who issued the "Notice — Medical Examination" and within eight clear days of the date appearing on such notice.

Any person who appears before a Board shall do so at his own expense.

War Industry and Seasonal Occupations given Consideration

In the national interest, applications for postponement of training of key men engaged in war industries, or in essential occupations, may be addressed to the Divisional Registrar concerned.

Eligible Men Must Not Leave Canada without Authority

No male British subject who is liable to be called out for military training shall, after his age class has been called out by proclamation, leave Canada, for any reason whatsoever, unless and until he has been so authorized in writing by the Chairman of the Board to whose jurisdiction such man is subject.

Eligible men must notify authorities immediately of change of address or marital status

If you are a single man or childless widower between the ages of 19 and 45 and if you change your address, or if you marry, you must immediately notify

THE NATIONAL WAR SERVICES DIVISIONAL REGISTRAR IN THE DIVISION IN WHICH YOU ARE REGISTERED

If you do not know the name and address of your Divisional Registrar, ask at your local post office.

Failure to comply with this requirement may subject you to a fine or imprisonment.

CIVIL RE-EMPLOYMENT

Provision has been made for the reinstatement of men in their positions of employment, after their periods of training or service, under conditions that will facilitate their re-entry to civilian life.

A Busy Country

The bureau of statistics reports the physical volume of business during the first half of this year was greater than in any similar period since 1929, while in June it reached a "new high point". The "physical volume of business" is the amount of goods that changes hands, measured in weights, units and quantities, not in money.

The present volume is of course swelled by an enormous and increasing flow of war materials. On the other hand, the wheat movement has been sluggish, and in some years the outflow of wheat has added millions of tons to the volume in the second half of a marketing year. The gain on one account off-sets the loss on the other, suggesting that the buying and selling of goods other than war materials and wheat is enormous and may even be unprecedented.

The turn-over of goods is a plain indicator of general conditions. It is large because from one end of the country to the other employment is plentiful, men and women earning wages. There is human interest in statistics if one cares to look past the figures to what they signify. That goods are moving in huge volume means that people are now able to buy freely and live better on the average.

The Fair

Attendance at the Fair was about 10,000 below the figures for last year, a drop of approximately 7 per cent. The circumstances considered, that is a very favorable showing. Cancellation of the stock show robbed the Fair in advance of one of the main reasons why this annual event has been staged, and of the patronage of those whose interest centres in the show-rings and stables. And the stiffing heat simply withered up the impulse to mingle in crowds. Those who went to the grounds did so in defiance of the weather rather than influenced by it.

Though more money is circulating, there was less betting on the races than a year ago, the slump corresponding roughly with that in attendance. Does this mean that the stockmen are usually generous patrons of the pari-mutuels, or that the heat sapped even the indiscernible guess which horse would come in first?

As always the crowds on the grounds were orderly, there was little for the police to do, there were no fires, and no serious accidents. It is expected that when the accounts are made up there will be a substantial balance of revenue over expenditure. The last Fair—for the duration—thus passes into history leaving a good record in these respects, a precedent which it is to be hoped post-war events will keep.

Smouldering Fires

Where there is much smoke there must be fire, and there is plenty of "smoke" to indicate that throughout the occupied countries sullen submission to Nazi bullying is giving way to incipient revolt.

From Norway to the Balkans and from France to Czechoslovakia come reports of growing unrest, of expressed hostility to the occupational forces, of overt acts of sabotage, and of punitive measures adopted by the gaulelters to suppress popular demonstrations. Berlin announces that wholesale shootings have taken place in Yugoslavia, in an attempt to stem the tide of insurgency, and Berlin is not likely to tell its troubles abroad if there is any way to squelch the news.

This of course is a reaction from the challenge Hitler has met in Russia and the widening devastation of R.A.F. raids on German munitions centres and supply systems. The longer the Russian deadlock continues and the farther the bombers spread destruction, the bolder the suppressed peoples will become, and the weaker the garrisons that hold them in check.

Immense as they are, the Fuehrer's forces are spread thinly over an area so vast that only the complete disarmament of the populations prevents an immediate continent-wide insurrection. Even lack of arms and the brutal character of their jailers has not cowed the subject peoples, and they know now that the tyrant who struck them down is not invincible.

The "V" that is being chalked on Nazi barracks and buildings all over occupied Europe is the hand-writing on the wall.

'Twas Ever Thus

Owners of public garages and service stations say Edmonton motorists are complying well with the spirit of the new regulations, and the appeal to cut down the unnecessary use of gasoline. No grumbling is being done about the closed hours, and it is noted that a good many drivers have become walkers in journeying to and from business.

It is altogether probable the same could be said of the reaction in every city across Canada, allowing of course for those odd individuals who always prefer to be out of step. The situation is one for which nobody is responsible, other than the pirates who have sunk so many tankers, and their bosses who have compelled the democratic countries to defend themselves in the air. Regulations or no regulations, there is just so much gasoline in sight for use in Canada, and nobody is not entitled to permit pleasure riding as usual.

That being the case, most people will conform to the needs of the case and do their self-denying cheerfully. It is the habit of Canadians generally to do without compulsion whatever their governments tell them should be done in the public interest. And equally the habit of a minority to say we do nothing of the kind and should be pounced on with a compulsory order every time concerted action is desirable in any direction.

Both rules will no doubt be observed in the present instance. There is little or no likelihood that the appeal for a voluntary 50 per cent reduction in consumption will fail of effect. The already there are predictions from the minority group that it certainly will fail and ought to be translated into mandatory law forthwith.

Stockholm had a report that Goering has fallen from grace and may be in an internment camp. The report is probably premature. Likely enough it will happen when disasters multiply and Adolf looks around for a scape-goat, but he can hardly have started the purge so soon.

Nazi forces are building steel and concrete fortifications along the French Channel coast. Fortifications are for defence against attack. It is something new to see the blitzkriegers building forts, indicating a change from the war of movement to a war of "fixation," from a strategy of attack to a strategy of resistance. The R.A.F. is driving them to cover.

Looking Backward

From The Bulletin Files

1891—50 Years Ago

The amalgamation of the Grand Trunk and the C.P.R. is rumored.

The Donaldson line steamer Circe was wrecked on Anticosti.

A mass meeting of citizens of St. Paul, headed by Archbishop Ireland and the Protestant clergymen, indicted the authorities to prevent the Fitzsimmons prize fight.

In the enquiry into the Tarte charges, witnesses testified that unmarked cheques had been substituted for marked cheques by contractors tendering for public works, and that McGreevey owned a steamer on the St. Lawrence which had been drawing subsidies for carrying mails. It was also shown that clerks in the interior department have been drawing pay irregularly. Papers and persons have been sent for to prove irregularities in the post office and immigration departments. A contractor is said to have got 80 per cent for sending the money for some other party for the elevators in the Langevin block. Dredging inspectors, it was stated, have been drawing regular salary and also drawing a percentage for certifying to work that was never done.

The prohibition of sealing in Behring's sea has practically closed the landing of 1,800 skins in Victoria, B.C., already this season. The enterprising sailors and sealers of the capital of the Pacific province may evidently be trusted to keep pretty near even on the seal question. More power to them.

1901—40 Years Ago

Asked when he would have the railway line completed across the river, Contractor McCrimmon intimated that the elements would have more to say about that than he would. Good weather was all he wanted, and good weather was what he wasn't having. Two out of the three big storms which have fallen on the site of the grading camp and played havoc with it. The horses working on the dumps ran away and the rain washed out the new steel made embankments.

The second big storm of the season struck town on Tuesday last, and the third on Thursday. Every Monday, two inches of rain fell in an hour. There was a bad fall of hail, though less damage was done than on the former occasion. Cellars along Jasper avenue are again flooded and merchants are subject to a second loss.

Erection of the new fire hall and council chamber in Strathcona was begun last week by William Deitz, contractor.

1911—30 Years Ago

Washington: The senate passed the reciprocity agreement.

Bisley: Private Clifford of Toronto won the King's prize.

Ottawa: The report was tabled of Mr. Justice Murphy, who investigated alleged frauds in connection with the entry of Chinamen into British Columbia.

London: Lloyd George, speaking to Lombard Street financiers, gave it to be understood that Britain will back France in the settlement of the dispute with Germany in Morocco.

1921—20 Years Ago

U.F.A. members-elect are meeting in Calgary to select Premier Stubbs' successor as the head of the new provincial government.

Grande Prairie: Oil is being baled out of the Imperial well at Kvilla, B.C.

Of 56 railways operating in Canada, 25 had deficits last year, while 31 paid operating expenses.

Chicago: Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson and Claude Williams told their stories at the baseball trial as to the money they received to throw games in the world series in 1919.

1931—10 Years Ago

Economic conditions are blamed for a slump of 5,000 in attendance at the Fair this year, compared with last year's figures.

The provincial department of agriculture is having a survey made of dry areas in southern Alberta, with a view to the construction of reservoirs where water would be available for stock.

Ottawa: The Canadian National failed by 30 millions to meet its interest charges last year.

Paris: Replying to a request from the League of Nations for information, the Government issued a memorandum saying France's armament has been reduced to the lowest possible point.

Something Definite

Equalize Wealth After War

Hope to End Dominance of Class When Struggle Is Ended

By J. S. COWPER

It may be too soon yet to predict the military outcome of the Nazi drive into Russia; it isn't too soon to say that the drive of the Nazis and the resultant alliance between Britain and Soviet Russia is a fortunate thing for Britain and the British masses.

Former Premier Hughes of Australia in hailing the new alliance remarked that "a numerically small section in Britain, composed of the very nicest people" view the new pact with Russia with suspicion and distrust. That's why the new alliance is a reassuring thing. This "numerically small section in Britain, composed of the very nicest people" has influence far beyond its numbers. It has wealth and social prestige rather than intelligence, and will be very loth to give up any of its prerogatives at the close of the war.

It was this class, wholly unrepresentative of the mass of British people, whose selfish distrust of democracy led to the betrayal of the Spanish government, the antagonism of Russia and the futile policy of appeasement for Hitler and the present war. Many of them at heart, like rich young Lindbergh, now married into the Mornay millions, were they as free as he to express themselves would, like him, declare for an alliance with Hitler instead of with Russia. So fearful is riches, and so blind is power.

Only by chance, during a recent murder trial in Kenya of a British officer charged with the murder of the Earl of Erroll, High Constable of Scotland, who had stolen the affections of the officer's bride, was it disclosed that this noble peer was a member of the Fascisti.

Needed Counterbalance

Michael Nostradamus, 16th Century Parisian scientist and mystic, in his versified prophecies has one which might be interpreted to mean that Britain will triumph over the Nazis, and afterwards be the subject of internal revolution. I don't know that the prophecies of Nostradamus are to be taken as gospel.

Nostradamus at any rate has to his credit predictions of the French Revolution, the days of Napoleon, the fall of Paris, the present helpless plight of France, the destruction of cities from the air and of shipping from under the sea, etc. More relevant is the fact that at the close of the First World War, upriaing in Britain was only averted by the introduction of unemployment insurance—known colloquially as "the dole." Soldiers from France and Mesopotamia did not propose to do as did their great grandfathers who beat Napoleon at Waterloo and die of starvation and want by the thousand, under English hedgerows.

This war will not have been worth enduring by the working masses of Britain unless it means the end of the system of working men longer hours than are needed, so that a standing army of unemployed may be maintained on the dole.

No willing man should suffer the ignominy of life on an unemployment dole, nor at the end live on a starvation pittance, merely kept in condition—the very day after France surrendered.

The alliance with Russia will act a counterbalance against that "numerically small section in Britain" of very nice people who wish to live as parasites on the backs of others.

The "Sword" Movement

An interdenominational movement for the bettering of the lot of the little man after the war is over, has been started in Britain. It is called the Sword of the Spirit Movement, and is headed by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, Cardinal Hinsley of Westminster, and Rev. Walter H. Armstrong, moderator of the Free Church Federal Council.

The announced principles of the movement are the abolition of extreme inequality in wealth, equal education for every child, the safeguarding of the family as a social unit, providing man with a sense of divine vocation, and "the resources of the earth to be used as God's gifts to the whole human race and used with due consideration for the needs of the present and future generations."

No less than 10,000 members of the air forces—those gallant youth of whom Churchill has said that never in all history was so much owed by so many to so few—have joined the Sword Movement. The leaders recognize that the British ruling class cannot be expected to yield up their privileges save with great reluctance. They are starting the fight now, organizing the movement, formulating their aims and pamphlets and formulating their code to win for the ordinary man permanent betterment.

There is to be no hope back into the old ways after this war for democracy is over.

Is Darlan Preparing To Betray Britain In The Pacific?

Will Vichy Hand Indo-China to Japanese Without Making Fight?

By HAROLD L. WEIR

Bearing in mind the Nazi technique which has now become traditional, observers see in Japan's loud claims that the British and Chinese are about to invade Indo-China the intention of the unpleasant little brown men to invade Indo-China themselves.

In view of the fact that Japanese transports and supply ships have been sighted moving southward, some commentators prophesy that Japan will strike in this area tomorrow or Friday.

Harold L. Weir

It may well be that the obviously inspired protests in Japanese newspapers over the alleged intentions of Britain and China in the French possession prelude a Japanese occupation of this territory. It is one of Hitler's oldest tricks. And the Japanese mind, devoid of all originality, highly prone to exact imitation, would be very likely to employ it.

Almost everybody had come to the conclusion that Japan was getting ready to move in some direction.

The latest report was that Hitler had requested Vichy's consent to attack Russia in her Siberian provinces.

It is possible, of course, that the gesture toward Indo-China is only a device to divert attention and that Siberia is still Japan's real objective.

If, however, she proposes to move into Indo-China first, there are two significant conclusions to be drawn:

1. Hitler must have become more confident, in the past 48 hours, of the course his attack on Russia is taking and believes he can proceed without calling for a Japanese flank assault.

2. Japan must feel that the United States will not get into the war even though her security in the Pacific is threatened.

Vichy Betrayal?

There is a disposition today to believe that if Japan marches into Indo-China, Vichy will offer no resistance. There are reports that the Japanese ambassador to Vichy has discussed the matter with Admiral Darlan and that the two understand each other quite well.

Darlan, of course, like most of his colleagues, has a fine background of treachery.

He is the man who, in violation of France's solemn guarantees and sacred assurances, promptly handed over to the Germans all the naval secrets Britain and France held in connection with the Syrian expedition—the very day after France surrendered.

He is the man who exhibited almost indecent haste in putting the hands of Hun naval officers charts of British mine fields and the secret of a submarine detection device perfected by the British admiralty and generously shared with France.

Almost anything may be expected of this kind of cattle. And in this connection, I should like to repeat the words I used in my broadcast last Saturday night. I said:

"Vichy may be prepared to give these blues up. A conscienceless crew of traitors that would betray its former allies for the sake of pagan Hun in Germany, would not hesitate to betray civilization for the sake of slant-eyed heathen in Japan—if the pay was good enough."

Belongs to France

A spineless surrender of Indo-China to the Japanese would be all the more odd in contrast to the terrific fight Frenchmen waged on behalf of Vichy for the possession of Syria.

That was a good fight, a gallant fight. And both the men in the ranks and General Dentz acquired themselves after the best traditions of a splendid nation. If they were our enemies for awhile, they were heroic enemies worthy of our respect and admiration.

Nevertheless the insult inflicted on honest French soldiers in making them shed their blood for territory to which they had no right at all, would be infinitely more than much greater insult of refusing to let them fight for territory which they honestly earned with their labor and with their lives.

France has a real title to Indo-China. Frenchmen colonized it and conquered it. Since away back in the middle of the 18th century, Frenchmen have given their lives to settle and hold this area. It is a genuine part of France, one of the first units in the great French Empire.

On the other hand, Syria was only governed by France as a mandate under the League of Nations. France never earned it. She shed no blood for it.

As a matter of fact, when France resigned from the Mandate she automatically relinquished her League-given mandate over Syria. Properly, her withdrawal from the League should have been complemented by her withdrawal from Syria.

One would have thought, then, that if she fought for Syria against the British, she would fight ten times over to prevent Indo-China from falling into the hands of the Japs.

Perhaps she will fight for Indo-China. Perhaps all these reports are wrong. I hope they are. It would be a diabolical thing to add another international crime to that long dark chaplet of treacheries and betrayals that the men of Vichy have hung about the conscience of France.

Why Excuse Them?

While most people in Britain and North America—particularly those of French birth or descent—have reconciled themselves to the fact that France's only hope lies in General Charles de Gaulle and his excellent colleagues, there are some few who try to find excuses for Petain et al.

They say that Vichy should not be condemned for departing from democracy and trying to orient France's peculiar political tendencies into a type of government adapted to her particular national needs.

They say that most British and Americans are bigoted in their democracy and are unfair in blaming Petain, Darlan and Laval for honestly trying to give France political institutions of her own.

In part, this is perfectly true. Many British and Americans are sadly bigotted about democracy. They are inclined to attribute to democracy a magic which it decidedly does not possess.

When we overthrew the Grand Monarchy and sought liberty through regicide and oceans of blood, she chose for herself, out of all the political systems in the world and out of all the systems she might have invented, that particular system which became known as democracy. It was her own choice, partly her own creation.

If, after 150 years, she still demands, as Petain demands, a right to choose again and formulate still another political philosophy that suits her better, all the best minds of the Revolution and after must have been unanimously wrong (which I don't deny) and all those rivers of blood must have flown most tragically in vain.

Are They "Honest"?

There is another aspect to the argument of the apologists for Petain, with which I must join issue. And that is the tendency to specify Vichy's attempt to create a new form of government as "honest."

Marshal Petain may be quite honest in his attempt to adapt French political system to existing conditions. He may be perfectly justified. France may require an entirely new concept of law and authority.

But are we to understand that into this new concept is being deliberately incorporated the standard of morality which Vichy has demonstrated during the past few months?

When Vichy lies about her food requirements and her oil requirements and hands these commodities over to Hitler, are we to understand that this practice is the goal of France's admirable new order?

When Darlan betrayed British naval secrets to the Germans, was that despicable act only Vichy's way of helping to build a beautiful new world for Frenchmen to live in?

Petain's new French system is predicated on collaboration with the beastly Nazis. Are we to understand that new system, then, is to admit that the Nazis must be right.

In that case, we, the British, must be wrong.

And since the aims and purposes of Hitler are exactly the same as the aims of policies of the late Kaiser, so must the Frenchmen of the last great war have been wrong.

Every great French statesman of 1914-19 must have been either a fool or a traitor and those million and a half of gallant men who laid down their lives for France must have died the deaths of mountebanks.

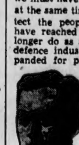

I confess I can't see it or understand it. Somehow I feel that "honesty" must be compatible with honor

U. S Needs War Economy

Must Strike a Balance Between Requirements of War and Civilian Needs

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Although much is being said about how we must have total defence and about how at the same time we must, at all costs, protect the people against an inflation, we have reached a point where talk will no longer do as a substitute for action. The defence industries have already been expanded for production on a scale which promises to be one of the greatest, if not the greatest, industrial achievements of all times. But the promise will not be fulfilled unless these industries are supplied with the raw materials, the power, the transportation and everything else that they need.

W. Lippmann

In order to supply them, shortages must develop in the supplies of civilian goods, and because the civilians are earning a great deal of money with which to buy the goods that must of necessity become scarcer, the stage is set for an inflationary rise of prices. The inflation will develop quickly if it is not at once firmly taken in hand.

The task of seeing to it that the defence industries are supplied cannot be separated from the duty of seeing to it that the civilians are not ruined by inflation. These are two aspects of the same fundamental problem which is how to divide the resources of the country between defence and civilian consumption. What goes to defence tends to create the shortage which leads to inflation. What is withheld for the civilians delays and reduces the output of arms. There ought, therefore, to be—but in fact there is not—one central, supreme economic committee with full power to control the supply of all essential economic resources.

Central Authority

The fact that the President has not seen the necessity of creating such a central authority is merely one of the external symptoms and consequences of a much deeper trouble. That deeper trouble may be described as a wishful conception founded on a false analysis of the problem of our war economy.

This would be a presumptuous thing to say if it were not the fact that American industry is already beginning to groan and creak under the strain imposed upon it. Why is it that even today, when we are just entering into the mass production of weapons, there are already serious difficulties in supplying the defence industries and of imminent danger of inflation? The Germans have the greatest mechanized army in the world; the steel production of all the countries they rule is about 40,000,000 tons. We can produce comfortably 86,000,000 tons. In respect to most of the important metals, except perhaps aluminum, our supplies are enormously greater than Germany's. Yet we are still not equaling the German production of weapons and already we are troubled by "deficits" and by "inflation." There must be some deep fault in our national economic policy to bring about such difficulties and dangers so early in our undertaking.

Thanks to a most illuminating analysis which has just been made by the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, we can see clearly enough what the trouble is. It is that we are trying to enjoy a boom and to out-produce Germany at the same time and there is nobody with authority to say that this cannot be done and that it must not be attempted.

We have been told in a government report that next year we shall need 120,000,000 tons of steel whereas our present capacity is short of ninety millions. Why are we going to need more steel next year? For defence? Only in part. The basis of calculation is that by next year our national income will be approximately $100,000,000,000 and that with this income we shall be trying to buy great quantities of cars, skyscrapers, public buildings, pleasure automobiles, refrigerators.

But this, as the Institute of Mining Engineers points out, is a ludicrous assumption to make in time of war. At the top of the 1929 boom the consumption of steel was 61,000,000 tons; the three-year average for 1936-38 was 47,000,000 tons. In war time the consumption of steel by civilians should be cut to the absolute essentials, and not expanded to boom proportions.

It is a serious question whether any of the measures now being discussed publicly, or all of them combined—higher taxes, purchase of government bonds, priorities, price controls, are sufficient to do what must be done: namely, to supply the defence industries and to prevent the resulting shortages of supply from developing an inflation under the pressure of the enormously increased civilian purchasing power.

No other country has organized a modern war economy ,successfully by these measures alone and we ought to ask ourselves right now whether more direct and decisive measures applied immediately will not in the end save us infinite difficulties. If the problem is to determine how the available supply of strategic materials and of necessary goods is to be distributed among defence industries and among civilians, may not the answer be that the government should step in at some point in the economic process, buy the whole supply of the materials at a fair price, and at the owner resell it at a controlled price where national defence and civilian needs require?

Present Inflation

If this is the most effective way to prevent inflation, it will be—however radical it may sound at first—the most effective in its consequences. Nothing is so violently disruptive of the social order as a run-away inflation, and the most radically effective measures to prevent inflation are, therefore, far preferable to more orthodox measures which do not work.

We should, then, consider seriously the government purchase of the whole supply of an essential commodity wherever serious shortage appears. For the experience of other countries seems to indicate that this is the most effective form of control —that it is the most effective means of controlling the large priorities and a fair price and of insuring a just distribution to the consumer. For the problem is to distribute the supply efficiently and justly. Only the government can determine how the distribution is to be made, and since that is the government's function, for this it is probably better to do it effectively and thoroughly by purchase than to do it badly by expropriation, denunciation, prosecution and confused and legally doubtful decrees.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Road Hog

Editor, Bulletin: Have you a little space for a word or two about the above parasite who lurks in his or her car? Or shall we wait of the middle or over on their wrong side altogether.

Regardless of width of road or of bends or dangerous curves these smart Alecs just depend on the other fellow to be a sober and sensible driver and keep complete control of his car and senses who often takes his life into his own hands in order to avoid disaster.

Last Friday night my wife and I were coming up the hill from White Mud Creek around 8 o'clock. When we were at the bend in the road half way up the hill, which is a dangerous point, three cars came down at a great rate of speed, right in the centre of the road the leader cutting the corner on his wrong side coming direct for me. I turned for the hill and chanced it, but I advise this driver to mend his ways or better still, quit until he gets his brains unscrambled so that he or she can use them and know enough to use not the only people on the roads.

It Was Chilly But He Didn't Freeze

A white trapper from 80 miles west in the mountains was in town the other day, and with a friend, was discussing the mild winter. The trapper said that in the middle of January he met an Indian camp around the valley, clad only in a pair of buckskin chaps, a red shirt, and moccasins! As met the Indian again in the spring, so he did not freeze to death, as the white man fully expected he would.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE

Just Older Men Who Prospect Near Rocky For Yellow Metal

Men who prospect for gold, area-starting down the North Saskatchewan river, looking for the precious metal. They've been delayed this year, waiting for high water which should have been here over a month ago, but they expect to get off this week. Many of them build their boats at the river here, flat bottomed skiffs that do not upset easily.

Rocky Mountain House is the only town on the North Saskatchewan, the only place highway or railway that touches the river from where it rises far back in the mountains, to Edmonton, so prospectors buy their supplies and start from here, no matter where they make camp, 10 or 50 miles down the river.

In depression years, scores of young men tried prospecting, but since the war, only older men are going, who will not be called for military service, who have no homes or kin, in whose blood prospecting for the yellow metal is a fever.

It is a hard, lonely life, but if a man knows how, he can wrest enough gold from the river to make a living, he may make a good stake. Most of the experienced men panned enough to live on for the year. Their summer expenses are low, no rent, heat, or light to pay for, no incidental expenses down town. They take in a good supply of dried and canned food, catch fish and shoot wild game. There are plenty of berries, if they have time to pick them.

Too, it's hard work, panning in the hot summer, and they risk their lives every year down the river, where the current is strong and there are dangerous rapids. These men won't tell where they are going, but gold may be found almost anywhere between here and Edmonton, and here the tributaries of the North Saskatchewan.

FROM THREES TO SEVENS

Certain pairs of three-letter words can be linked by a single letter to make seven-letter words. For example, ALL and WED can be linked with an O to make ALLOWED, as shown above. Each three-letter word listed here belongs somewhere in the diagram. Each can be linked to one of the others to make a seven-letter word. When all pairs and their correct linking-letters have been found, print them in place. If you do this in the proper order, the circle column reading downwards will spell a word that will prove you've finished!

Looking them Over

By JACK KELLY

NEW interest and possibilities were injected into the Edmonton Junior Baseball League race last night as Allard's Maple Leafs arose and smacked down their old rivals, the Canadian Athletic Club, by 9-2—the first defeat the Canadians have had this season.

The victory makes no change in the league standings, but it opens the race for playoff positions and promises much stiffer competition from now on among the three top clubs.

Junior League playoffs are slated to start about the end of the first week of August with the second and third place clubs meeting in a best-of-three series, and the winner advancing into a best-of-five series with the league-leaders.

This Girl Learns Fast

WHEN 15-year-old Jean Smeltzer won the city junior diving championship at the West End gala Monday night, she did something that probably has never been done before. She perfected her little technique in just 11 days. Less than two weeks ago she could do only a plain dive. Then Bob O'Brien began coaching her and now she is soaring off the board in all the dives required by title regulations. Jean is considered one of the greatest prospects the West End Club has ever had. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Smeltzer, 10237 125 street.

Dodgers Are The Smart Boys Now

LEO DUROCHER reached back into the good old days of the dead ball for daring strategy that has won five games and given the Brooklyns a safer margin in as many more," says Harry Grayson, veteran Cleveland sport columnist.

It is the running squeeze . . . suicide when it misses, but which can't miss if the batter dumps the ball on the ground. The safety squeeze, let alone the vastly more dangerous running, practically passed out with the advent of the lively ball. The difference is that in the safety squeeze the runner doesn't go until the ball is bunted.

In the running squeeze, the runner is off the instant the pitcher has the full length of his arm out in front of his body.

If he starts before the pitcher completes his windup and commits himself in the delivery of the ball, the pitcher can switch and pitch out with an excellent chance of catching the runner flat-footed.

Lippy Durocher employs the running squeeze because by nature he is a gambler and has four of the slickest bunters in the business in himself, Dixie Walker, Mickey Owen and Jimmy Wasdell.

Sometimes It's Unbeatable

ON rare occasions, a pitch-out will be so wide that the runner can elide across the plate before the catcher can swing around and tag him. Such was the case when Gene Moore scored with Durocher batting in beat the Cubs in the 14th inning a couple of years ago.

But the main idea is for the man on the batting end to get a piece of the ball and to keep it out of the air. He's a dead goose along with the runner if he pops it up.

The hitter must fool the pitcher . . . give the impression he is going to hit.

The Dodgers beat the Cardinals with the running squeeze.

They defeated Paul Derringer and the Reds, 2-1, with it in the 16th, with Walker on the bunting and Pete Reiser on the running end.

It took a lot of courage for Manager Durocher to remove Kirby Higbee, a two-hit shutout pitcher, to make room for Pinch-hitter Lavagetto, another with the bases full and one out against the Cubs in the ninth inning the other afternoon.

This Was Sheer Bravery

IT was sheer bravery for Durocher to put on the running squeeze on the second pitch of Verne Olsen, invincible until Joe Medwick singled in that round and put in trouble by an error. Olsen walked Owen to fill the bases, believing that Durocher would let Higbe bat . . .

But Durocher not only had the nerve to run the risk of a second guessers' attack, but had the skill to carry out the play's more difficult assignment.

There was no chance for a play on Joe Medwick when Verne Olsen got hold of the ball, so the southpaw threw it over the grandstand.

One of the principal reasons why the Bookyns are on top is that Leo Durocher frequently gets away from the orthodox and routine and takes advantage of the element of surprise to make opposing managers and players feel like throwing the baseball over the grandstand.

Maple Leafs Hand Canadians First Baseball Defeat

SPORTS BULLETIN

Rally in Closing Innings Beats League-Leaders 9-2

COMING from behind in the seventh with what proved to be the winning run and then pushing six more tallies across in a wild and wooly eighth frame attack, Allard's Maple Leafs handed Dick Speer's Canadians a 9-2 drubbing last night to end their undefeated streak at five straight games. It was the Canadians' first loss of the Junior Baseball League season.

It was big Ed Nordstrom of the Canadians' pitching squad that the Maple Leafs fell on for the victory. Nordstrom took over the mound at the start of the fourth after Wally Emberg, who started the game, was tossed out of the park by Umpire Bob Coxford for remarks he made about one of Bob's decisions.

Pele Danylowich did the hurling for the Maple Leafs and turned in a fine performance all the way. The Canadians were never able to get more than one hit off him in any one inning and only five altogether. He struck out 10 and walked four.

CANADIANS BOOT 'EM

While the Leafs were able to collect only five hits, the Canadians booted no less than 11 fielding chances and Nordstrom passed seven men on balls. The Leafs earned two runs and the Canadians none.

It was a crisp ball game until the eighth inning debacle. Leafs scored one in the first frame on two errors and two wild pitches by Emberg and then scoreless until they counted two in the seventh. Canadians scored in the second and third and then never had more than four men at bat in any one inning after.

CALLED FOR DARKNESS

The game was called at the end of the eighth on account of darkness as heavy clouds closed in from the west.

Bright spots of the Canadians' fielding, which was otherwise very bad, were two double plays—Emberg to Nordstrom and Squire to Cox. Squire pulled off a sensational running shoe-string catch of Noon's low fly in the seventh and doubled Dan Danylowich off first base.

Maple Leafs turned in one of their best fielding jobs of the season as Coach Allard shuffled his lineup freely during the game.

Parker Barely Escapes Defeat At Sea Bright

SEA BRIGHT, N.J., July 23—(AP)—Frankie Parker, the clay court master, almost missed the boat Tuesday as the seeded stars coasted into the third round of the 84th annual Sea Bright invitation tennis tournament.

Winner of eight out of the nine clay court tournaments, Parker found himself on grass for the first time this year, and the change forced him to go all out for a three-set victory over Edwin G. Amark of San Francisco, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2.

Top-seeded Don McNeill, the national champion, made an impressive tournament debut by polishing off Robert Kerashaw 6-3, 6-0. Second-seeded Bobby Riggs, the defending tournament titlist, won easily over William Canning 6-2, 6-1, and Frank Kovacs, seeded fourth, trounced Henry Batjer 6-1, 6-1, to join Parker in the third round.

Gene Mako fell before Seymour Greenberg 6-2, 6-3; Frank Shields bowed to William Crosby 7-5, 6-3 and George Lyttleton-Rogers went down 6-1, 6-2 before Joe Flahback.

Second round competition in the women's division produced the tournament's first major upset as Virginia Wolfenden, the fourth-seeded star, was eliminated by Mrs. Millicent Hirsch Lang, in a two-hour battle. 6-4, 7-6, 10-8.

Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Cooke encountered some resistance from Jane Stanton before winning, 6-1, 7-5. Helen Jacobs outclassed Shirley Catlon in straight love sets and Dorothy May Bundy seeded third, trimmed Mrs. Helen Rihbany 6-1, 6-1.

Cupid Pitching Better Games For Pirate Southpaw

PITTSBURGH, July 23 — (AP) — The magic of matrimony has transformed bridegroom Kenny Heintzelman from an erratic portsider into one of the most effective young pitchers in the National League.

At least the 24-year-old Pittsburgh Pirate Southpaw said Tuesday he thinks pitching as a family man "has something to do" with a string of five consecutive victories he has notched since he became a benedict last May 24.

Two days before the wedding Kenny essayed a start against the Boston Braves and failed to last out the first inning. Maybe it was "bridegroom jitters" but:

"I didn't get a man out," Kenny said, smiling. "Now—"

"I want Ken to win 'em all," interrupted his new wife in the former Miss Pearl Boenker, 22, of St. Charles, Mo.

So far Kenny has done all right at the shore his bride has assigned him. He has shut out New York, stopped St. Louis and Cincinnati and mowed down those tough Brooklyns for a sweep of the nation's first division clubs.

Yankee Hurler Has Indian Sign On Indian Crew

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, July 23—Sometimes in baseball a pitcher gets the "number" of a rival ball club and the Cleveland Indians. The New York Yankees has on the Cleveland Indians has proved immensely important.

Donald is a 28-year-old southern boy who is never mentioned in the same breath with the better pitchers of the American league, although in 1939 he set a major league record for rookies by winning 12 consecutive games. A sore arm stopped him and he has been a no-no pitcher ever since, against everybody, that is, but the Indians.

He has won five games this year, three of them over Cleveland and twice against Bob Feller.

Yesterday he led the Yanks to a 4-3 decision that turned the pennant race into a virtual runaway, giving the Yanks their 35th victory in 41 contests and an eight-game grip on first place.

The sturdy right-hander held the tribe to six hits and broke their hearts by fanning four men in the first three innings. The score wouldn't have been close except for Clarence (Soup) Campbell, a Cleveland rookie, who hit a double and a home run.

Feller, trying for his 20th victory before 45,000 fans, put up a game battle, holding the Yanks to seven hits. But six of these were bunched in the first four frames and were interspersed with walks. The blows included a home run by Joe Gordon and timely doubles by Charley Keller and Joe DiMaggio, who now has hit in five straight games since his 56-game streak was snapped.

Centrals Ease Out Welders To Meet Lacombe for Title

EXECUTING a quick about-turn from their procedure in regular schedule league games when they went under on every occasion the two teams met, Centrals senior men defeated Medico Welders 3-1 Tuesday night to take the best of a two-out-of-three encounter to decide Edmonton's representative for the northern provincial men's senior softball title.

By dint of their win, the Centrals will meet Lacombe for the coveted award.

Highlights of Tuesday's game included a single to centre by Al Young of the Centrals. Then with two away Sam Stevenson poled a homer over the left field fence to put the Centrals in the lead 2-1. In the fourth, with one away, Joe Sekul, Central strong man, was safe when Ben Klingspoon made an unsuccessful attempt to kidnap a sleek grounder. Nin Gray was safe on a fielder's choice and Art Dalmar was charged with an error at second when he muffed a throw, again saving Sekul.

Jack Graham banged out a two-bagger at right to score Sekul.

The Welders' run came in the first inning when, with two out, Art Dalmar hit for three bags and Balake Barker dropped a long fly to left field. Klingspoon brought him home with a double to left.

Young, Central pitcher, kept the hits well-scattered and was only in difficulties once in the sixth inning. Centrals earned two runs, the Welders none.

Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. the Army and Navy Pats will be matched against the Big Orange Buffaloes in the Senior Ladies' League.

Milestone Wins Grand Circuit At Orchard Beach

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Md., July 23 — (AP) — Wayne (Curly) Smart drove Joseph Neville's bay gelding Milestone to victory in the Grand Circuit's feature 2:12 stake trot Tuesday after finishing third in the first heat.

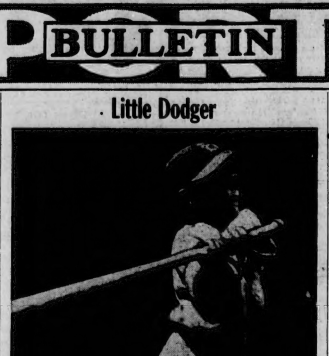

The Delaware, Ohio, horse bested Flora Hanover in stretch duels to take the second heat, 15-16ths of a mile, in 1.54½ and the third, an even mile, in 2.06½. Brittanic won the first dash in 2.04.

In the 2.08 bar pace, the Abbott, a converted trotter from the Machin Stables of Sullivan and Mawhinney, won all three heats easily.

Black Bonney, a black gelding owned by Mr. Johnson of Reading, Pa., won two of the 2.11 bag pace's three heats and was paired with Brittanic for a $7.90 daily double.

Bettina's Southpaw Attack Wins Decision Over Burman

By SID FEDER

BROOKLYN, July 23.—(AP)—The southpaw style of Melio Bettina was too puzzling for Red Burman to solve Tuesday night and the former light-heavyweight champion punched out a 10-round decision over the Baltimore red-head before a crowd of 10,167 in Ebbets Field. Bettina weighed 186¼; Burman, 189½.

In this home ball park of the Brooklyn Dodgers, where just about everything happens, just about everything did in this tough tussle.

There was one moment, in the fourth round, when both fighters fell out of the ring. There was another, in the eighth, when Burman, unable to do anything using an orthodox stance, switched to a southpaw style and for a couple of minutes had Melio on the run.

And finally, you have the somewhat startling picture of Burman, whose chin Louis couldn't dent with his Sunday shots, twice being staggered by Bettina's left hand pokes, which hitherto never had been regarded as needing a sign to warn the unwary of high explosive content.

All in all, however, it was an important, and upset triumph for the determined little Italian from Boston, N.Y., who quit the light-heavyweight ranks nearly a year ago to campaign among the big boys.

The Associated Press score card gave Melio eight rounds and Burman two.

Don't Forget a Credit For Gallant Tom Henrich

As all things must, the mighty DiMag's record-breaking hitting streak stopped on the figure 56, and that's where it jells into the books of the future. If it carried foot-notes along, these would be some: He upped his batting average more than 50 points during the run; he went more than two months before a pitcher could beat him; nobody struck him out in his last 32 games; he carried the Yankee team almost alone from fourth place to first, from 6½ games behind to seven games in front.

Cleveland being the front runner his feat shoved into deep second place, you might even say, he batted Cleveland out of the pennant race; he smashed 14 home runs, nine triples, 16 two-baggers and 56 singles, for a total of 158 bases, thus averaging practically two hits and three bases per game; he now owns all the records in this particular department, having established the minor league record in this specialty in 1935 with a figure of 61.

DODGERS IN YANKEE STADIUM

SOMEWHERE in there, too, a faint assist should be recorded to the credit of his teammate, Tom Henrich. About two-thirds of the distance through the string, a situation arose wherein Joe had gone hitless, Henrich was up and a double play would end the hill game shutting DiMaggio off from another time at bat. Clubbing the missile carefully so as to sacrifice only himself, instead of taking a free swing and seeing what happened, Henrich saved the batting chance for his teammate and DiMag came through with the safe rap that kept the string living.

A home town fight of proportions has broken out in Brooklyn over the proposal to have the Dodgers play their world series home games in the Yankee Stadium. It's really a blaser with merchants, civic organizations and the borough's biggest newspaper mixing in eagerly. They already see it as nothing but an her Subway Series, the Dodgers vs. the Yanks.

An anomaly of parts was the sight of Arky Vaughan, who whacked two home runs in succession in the All-Star game, polishing the planking on the Pirate bench while Frankie Frisch stuck with Alf Anderson. Although Arky is captain of the club he was benched prior to his All-Star heroics, and Frisch followed the time-honored custom of not breaking up a winning combination. The Pirates were red hot with young Mr. Anderson in there. . . .

Now that the draft limit has been lowered under their years, one wonders if there'd be much of a howl if Hank Greenberg and Hugh Mulcahy were detached from the service even if subject to recall in an emergency, and allowed to proceed with their baseball careers? They're the only two major leaguers who really got nabbed despite a lot of others who were called up and looked over. Maybe the precedent would be dangerous, but both were both are sacrificing heavily, and both could be spared. Both have served, and are serving, as models for young Americans—I think if I had a vote on it I'd furlough 'em for the rest of the season. How about you? . . . . .

HARD-MUSCLED GRIDMEN

BERNIE BIERMAN believes in hard summer; work for his football players. At least 10 of his regulars are doing hard manual labor in Mid-West defense industrial plants. Most of them rest six working in steel mills, on roads, in iron mines and such. To play hard-way football, you've got to be in hard-way shape. You can't get it sitting on stools or leading the hounds at some race track exclusively. To keep his crew football minded, Bierman mails each man at regular intervals some plays to look over and criticize. . . .

Managers Casey Stengel and Frankie Frisch were observed having dinner together in a Boston restaurant the other evening, in such earnest converse that neither was touching his food. If harbingers trading . . . Among those who could feelingly send regrets, if they dared, upon the decease of the DiMaggio batting streak, are the magnates around and about. There hasn't been such a box-office attraction at large since Babe Ruth was making 'em a night. The crowd of 50,000 in Chicago the Sunday before the string ended, cleared the White Sox for the year, and the 67,468 who viewed the end of the run at Cleveland probably won't be equalled again, not even by world series play. . . .

A large phoofl to the army for trying to make Cupid a commissioned officer. The new regulation forbidding nurses to date enlisted men, upon the grounds that romance halves officers' rating and that enlisted gentlemen are thus beneath their official status, is another item to file in the "Yoo Hoo" department. Nurses don't drill the young men. They can't give 'em orders. There wouldn't seem to be any conflict between dancing and discipline. A gal, still in this land, has a right to go around with a swain of her choice. How about those who are engaged to draftees and the likes? What have they got to do, smuggle notes until it's over? . . . .

EXPLANATION OF TODAY'S CARTOON

LAST LAUGH: Turkey's most famous practical joker and humorist, Khota Nasr Ed Din, who died 500 years ago, directed that a hole be left in the masonry of his tomb so that he can continue to look out upon the world and laugh at the foibles of its inhabitants. He said that the laughter will cause his head covering to expand and his fellow plant fills out every space in the aweto's body until the animal is completely transformed into vegetable matter. Then the plant and the animal become hard and dry and perish. How the aweto manages to propagate its species is an unfathomable secret.

Three City Women Enter Championship Semi-Finals

EDMONTON and Calgary each had four players left in the men's open singles, while three Edmontonians and one Lethbridge competitor filled the semi-finals of the ladies' open singles when play was resumed this morning in the Alberta tennis championships here at the Glenora courts.

Tuesday saw play continue right through until dark with nothing in the way of a major upset of the seeded stars. Tourney officials expect to reach the fours in both the men's and ladies' doubles today.

Survivors early today in the men's open singles were Bill Stark, Ernie Anderson, Frank Poxon and Gordon McLaws of Calgary; Roger Waters, Andy Purcell, Harry Kinloch and either Tudor Edmunds or Les MacManus of Edmonton.

AUSTRALIAN OUSTED

Stark eliminated Alf Blyth of Edmonton 6-0, 6-0 on Tuesday in a surprising sweep. LAC. Norman Jones the Australian airman, was eliminated from the singles 6-3, 6-4 by Ernie Anderson of Calgary. Toughest match of all in this event was Harry Kinloch's gruelling 6-4, 6-8, 8-6 defeat of Dr. H. Richards.

Highlights of today's single play promise to come on the 2.30 p.m. draw when Bill Stark and Ernie Anderson clash and Poxon of Calgary meets Roger Waters of Edmonton. Poxon sprang a surprise on yesterday when he eliminated the veteran Fred Mitchell 6-2, 6-3.

LAST HOPE DIES

Calgary's last hope in the ladies' open singles died out when Gertrude Peterson fought stubbornly to the last ditch before bowing to Mrs. C. Tanney of Edmonton at 7-5, 4-6, 6-3.

Miss Bessie McAvoy and Mrs. Tanney are bracketed in one semi-final of the ladies' singles while Mrs. K. Hanna of Edmonton and Mrs. K. Wilson of Lethbridge meet in the other.

American League

NEW YORK, July 23.—(AP)—The rampant New York Yankees overpowered Bob Feller Tuesday and edged out Cleveland Indians 4-3, practically clinching the last substantial between them and another American League pennant.

But he was manhandled in the early innings, and instead of gaining his 20th victory, suffered his fifth defeat of the season.

As a result the Yanks increased their first place margin to an apparently impregnable eight games.

Wheat Prices Slip One Cent

WINNIPEG, July 23—(CP)—Wheat futures prices slipped ⅞-1 cents on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today as minor selling orders outweighed meagre support from exports, mills and locals. July wheat closed at 75, October 77, and December 78⅜ cents a bushel.

A minor amount of durum wheat was reported worked for shipment to the United Kingdom.

In the coarse grain pit, mills offered fair support for oats but oats and barley prices both worked lower on liquidation, oats losing about 1½ cents, barley 2-½ cents. Flax and rye prices drifted downward in dull trade.

McColl Frontenac To Build Refinery

CALGARY, July 23—(CP)—The McColl Frontenac Oil Company Ltd., of Canada plans to build a big modern oil refinery on a 60 acre site which has already been purchased in the Bonnybrook district in East Calgary.

It is understood the plant will cost at least $1,000,000 to complete and will have a capacity to handle 3,500 barrels of crude oil a day from the Turner Valley and other oilfields adjacent to Calgary.

This will be the third major refinery in the city, for the Imperial Oil Company Ltd., and the British American Oil Company Ltd., already have huge refineries in the East Calgary district.

City council will hold a special meeting Thursday to authorize the civic building department to issue a permit for buildings costing $275,000 to construct.

Canucks Given Furious Test By Paratroops

By ROSS MUNRO

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, July 23—(CP)—Testing airdrome defences, units of the British paratroops corps made a mimic dawn attack on an air station near a Western Canada infantry regiment and gave the Canucks a furious workout as they counter-attacked to oust the skymen from the field.

This 1st Canadian Division regiment was the first Canadian unit to undergo the test, in which actual paratroops were dropped from troop-carrying planes.

In a few minutes they were organized into bands with all their arms and headed for the airdrome, which had been dive-bombed before daylight by Royal Canadian Air Force planes, flying with navigation lights on so they wouldn't bump into Royal Air Force bombers returning from night sorties over the channel.

Sinister paratroops, loaded with weapons, hustled along hedgerows and through the mists hanging over the fields. English country-folk, awakened by the low-flying planes, looked out of their windows in dismay at these dawn troopers, not sure whether they were Nazis or Tommies.

The Canucks finally got things under control.

Information On War Services Is Given Young Men

Officials of the national war services department report gratifying and ready response from young Canadians being called for military training under the National Resources Mobilization Act.

They state, however, that while each man receives a mailed individual and personal notice of his call to training, as his period arrives, a number of enquiries are still being sent direct to Ottawa. Major-General LaFleche, associate deputy minister of the department of national war services, under whose direction the mobilizing of trainees is being carried out, points out that the regulations have been planned to smooth out possible difficulties for the trainee by dividing Canada into 13 administrative divisions, with officials and headquarters offices in each division authorized to handle procedure and operations locally.

PENALTIES

To the divisional registrar of national war services in the area in which they are registered should be forwarded all communications concerning business arising from the provisions of national war service regulations.

All men from 19 to 45 are warned that notification must also be given promptly of change of address or marital status. Failure to do so incurs the risk of fine or imprisonment.

Young men in this area, liable for military training, requiring further information regarding their obligations or applications for postponement should communicate with the divisional registrar for this district, whose name and address are given below for their convenience, along with the names of other members of the board:

Division "N", Headquarters: Edmonton, Alta.

Chairman of the board: Hon. Horace Harvey, Chief Justice, Edmonton, Alta.

Members of the board: Elmor Feir, barrister, Stettler, Alta.; R. J. Dinning, 305 Canadian Bank of Commerce Building, Edmonton, Alta.

Divisional registrar: J. P. McIsaac, K.C., Court House, Edmonton, Alta.

ELECTORAL DISTRICTS

This division comprises the electoral districts of Acadia (210), Athabaska (211), Battle River (212), Bow River (213), Calgary East (214), Calgary West (215), Camrose (216), Edmonton East (217), Edmonton West (218), Jasper-Edson (219), Lethbridge (220), Macleod (221), Medicine Hat (222), Peace River (223), Red Deer (224), Vegreville (225), Wetaskiwin (226) and the district of MacKenzie.

R.A.F. Scores Daylight Raid Over Europe

Other forces of British bombers struck at docks at Dunkerque, Rotterdam and Ostend, the air ministry announced.

During the night German raiders confined their activity to the east and northeast coastal areas of Great Britain, injuring a few persons and causing superficial damage. (The Germans said Hull was one of the places attacked.)

British fighters on a night offensive patrol strafed a number of German airdromes in northern France. This night fighter activity was added to increasingly effective work by fighter patrols in daylight, which over northern France have become so formidable that large German fighter formations frequently avoid them.

British fighters escorting bombers in a raid yesterday met two large flights of Messerschmit's which veered away and refused to give battle.

HAD EMPTY SKY

"It was all very beautiful, with the Seine 10,000 feet below," said one fighter pilot. "We had an empty sky, but we don't like empty sky."

Four Messerschmitts were shot down by two Polish squadrons of the R.A.F. who came across them while escorting bombers in a raid on the shipbuilding yards at Le Trait, situated on the Seine west of Rouen. Bombs were seen to explode on sheds and slipways, and the targets were left hidden in smoke.

Ottawa Reduces Consumption Of Pork Products

Kingdom and British possessions. This restriction came into effect today.

3—The price paid by he bacon board to packers for Wiltshire bacon for shipment to the United Kingdom will be further advanced $1 a hundredweight, effective from the opening of livestock markets today.

PRICE NOW $19.60

This raises the price for grade A. No. 1 sizeable Wiltshires to $19.60 a hundredweight, compared with a price of $16.10 under the original 1940-41 contract with Britain.

The reduction in the amount of pork products available for sale in Canada was the second time such action has been taken under the War Measures Act.

The first, last May, limited to the weekly average of last year the amount of pork products on the Canadian market, and at that time a spokesman for the bacon board said: "If we find it necessary to take over all the ham and bacon in Canada to meet Britain's request (for more bacon) we will not hesitate to do it."

CURTAILMENT INSUFFICIENT

Subsequently the board issued an appeal to Canadians to eat less pork, but apparently the voluntary curtailment in pork purchases was insufficient to meet the increased British requirements.

Mr. Gardiner's announcement said the British ministry of food had requested that shipments of bacon under the present Canada-United Kingdom agreement be speeded up so that, if possible, the present contract for 425,000,000 pounds of bacon, hams and other cuts be completed by about Sept. 15 instead of Oct. 31 as originally scheduled.

"The increased rate of shipment necessary to comply with this request will require that every hog marketed in Canada during the next two months be available for export to the United Kingdom or for distribution in the domestic market," Mr. Gardiner said.

INCREASE EXPECTED

"On the completion of the present agreement for 425,000,000 pounds of bacon, hams and other cuts on Sept. 15, 1941, it is anticipated that the agreement for the following 12 months will call for the delivery by Canada of 600,000,000 pounds of bacon, ham and other cuts.

"The larger order will necessitate a substantial increase in the Canadian production of hogs."

The reduction in the amount of pork products to be available for Canadian consumption followed by almost a month an appeal from the Canadian bacon board to Canadians, urging them to eat less pork to leave ample supplies available for the United Kingdom.

Around that time a spokesman for the bacon board said that "if we find it necessary to take over all the ham and bacon in Canada to meet Britain's request (for more bacon) we will not hesitate to do it."

PRICE EQUALS U.S.

The last increase in the seaboard price payable for export bacon went into effect June 24—75 cents a hundredweight. A similar 75-cent price increase went into effect June 2 and on May 1 there was an increase of $1.

Of last night's price announcement, Mr. Gardiner said:

"This is in order to bring the value of bacon in Canada closer to parity with the present price of hogs in the United States."

Mr. Gardiner said that recently the bacon board received information that it was of the "Utmost importance that regular weekly shipments as provided for in the present (bacon) agreement be maintained, otherwise the British ministry of food would find difficulty in maintaining a ration of four ounces per week per person to the people of the British Isles."

When the first $1 price increase went into effect the United Kingdom agreed to finance the difference, with the proviso that if the price of United States hogs moved further above a parity of this new price, the difference would be borne by Canada.

SHARP ADVANCES

"Hog prices in the United States have continued to advance sharply inducing a flow of live hogs and dressed products to the United States, thereby jeopardizing the quantities required for export to the United Kingdom."

The increases since May 1—including last night's—have been paid by the Canadian government.

Last June 23, in its appeal for smaller pork consumption in the Dominion, the Bacon Board said it was expected that by fall the marketings of hogs in Canada would be sufficient to meet British requirements and leave plenty for home consumption in Canada.

WHEAT MARKETINGS ON INCREASE

Alberta Industry Shows Vast Gains For Four Months

M.P. Declares Opposition Is National Need

Believing that the development of a strong opposition party is a matter of national necessity and constitutes a national war service, Gordon Graydon, M.P. for Peel county and national chairman of the Conservative Party, arrived in Edmonton Wednesday to confer with party members and others here on questions pertaining to local organization of the party.

Mr. Graydon said he was not interested in mere partisanship, and said that anything in a public way done in the Dominion now must be definitely related to Canada's war effort and post-war period of reconstruction and rehabilitation in order to be justified.

He said the press and public are at one for the necessity of building a strong opposition party. The Conservative Party, he added, as the present opposition, constitutes an instrument of democracy in Canada.

IS DEMOCRACY

It is the duty therefore, continued Mr. Graydon, not only of Conservatives, but others to see that this major institution of the very democracy Canada is fighting for is strengthened and made more effective for the prosecution of the war and the solution of the problems that will arise at its close.

He considered that the first step in this strengthening of the opposition should be the reaching out throughout Canada to contact party members and citizens generally for the purpose of obtaining first-hand opinions of the trend of public opinion.

Since his tour of Canada began in June last Mr. Graydon has visited Manitoba and Saskatchewan and the Maritimes. He has held 56 meetings on the prairies.

He declined to comment on current issues such as conscription, adding that his was a listening rather than a talking tour.

Mr. Graydon will be the guest of the East and West Edmonton Conservative Associations at a luncheon to be held at the Corona hotel on Thursday at noon.

TO VISIT DISTRICT

During his stay in Edmonton he will contact prominent party members in the city and district. On Friday he will proceed to Wetaskiwin and Camrose for conferences in these ridings and on Saturday will meet members of the executive of Jasper-Edson riding. He will leave for the Pacific Coast at the week-end.

Mr. Graydon was first elected to the house of commons for Peel county in the 1935 election, and was re-elected in the 1940 general election with a very substantially increased majority. He took over the duties of national chairman of the Conservative Party for Canada in May 1941.

To Speak Here

Gordon Graydon, M.P. for Peel County, Ont., and national chairman of the Conservative Party, who arrived in Edmonton Wednesday in the course of a trans-Canada organization tour.

Peter Deer Has All The Luck

Myrna Loy, famous actress of the screen, and her husband, known in private life as Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hornblow, have been holidaying at Jasper Park Lodge. On the day of their arrival one of the employees found a three-week-old fawn whose mother had been accidentally killed by a car. The famous actress adopted the animal and fed it every day as seen in the picture. Miss Loy has officially named her friend "Peter" and takes him walking on a leash every day.

Hollywood Pair End Holiday In Mountain Park

JASPER, Alta., July 23—A recall to work by Metro Goldwyn Mayer studios Tuesday brought to an end a week's visit to Jasper Park Lodge of Myrna Loy and her director husband, Arthur Hornblow. During their visit to the lodge, Miss Loy and her husband took an active part in summer sports, spending long hours hiking, riding the many trails and going on picnics. They also enjoyed the fishing at Honeymoon Lake and Maligne Lake.

Prior to their departure today, the Hornblows presented Jack Fleming, carpenter at Jasper Park Lodge, who initiated them in the art of casting and acted as a special guide, with a hunting knife bearing the inscription "To Jack, in souvenir of a wild ride on a stormy lake, Maligne, July 18."

Jack also made a presentation to the Hornblows, in the form of a model canoe inscribed "A take from Jack to Mr. and Mrs. Hornblow, two of the best seamates that ever sailed the high waves."

Getting Around with JOHN OLIVER

PROVINCIAL tennis championships are being decided at the six shale courts of the Glenora Tennis club, 120 street, this week. Scanning the draw, I decided that it was high time I checked over the tourney and its competitors, and I myself westward. A provincial tennis championship is quite an event here, this being the first occasion since 1936 that we have been privileged to see it. Since then, for reasons which were far from satisfactory, it has been held at Banff, Lethbridge and Calgary.

Up until that time, it had been at least an unwritten law that it should alternate between this city and Calgary. However, the event has now "come home." It was here that tennis was mainly built up, on firm foundations laid by pioneers in the game in Alberta. In recent years, Calgary has forged well to the front, while the game is highly popular all over the province.

It was good to see Ernie Anderson in action again. He first made friends here when he played with the great Selkirk hockey team, that included Joe Simpson, Jocko Anderson, Crutchy Morrison and others. Ernie later played with Edmonton and Calgary Tigers in the professional circuit. His hockey days are history, but he still wields a winning racket on the courts. As I arrived he was locked in combat with Australia's splendid contribution to the event, LAC. E. Jones. It had been rumored and Ernie confirmed it that the diminutive Calgarian had developed a punishing drive. Maybe he has, but the Anzac kept him so busy that he didn't have time to use it and had to resort to the type of game that has worn down so many players in the past—getting the ball back until the other fellow missed. The Anzac was worn down too, and Ernie came out on top.

He is one of the "grand old men" of tennis. He has been playing in the provincial event since 1922. He has been finalist in the open singles, he has won the men's doubles and the mixed doubles and after many years trying, won the coveted Ferris Cup. As a sportsman they don't "make 'em any better" than Ernie.

Second generations of some leading tennis experts are appearing. In the "Fisher and Son" event are Fred J. Mitchell and his son Bobbie; Fred Batchelor and his son; Ernie Anderson and his son Donald; from Garneau there is the team of Dominy and Dominy, all of which might indicate there is something hereditary in the game.

I didn't see Dr. Bill Stark, the prospective re-conquering hero, in action, but I did meet "Acrobatic Alfred" Blyth, shortly after he had played the volatile medical practitioner. I asked Alf how he came out and he said he had lost. "What was the score?" I queried. "There wasn't any as far as I was concerned," replied the Acrobatic Photographer with a smile. Alf said he got a goodly number of points, but not when they meant games. He confessed Stark is going "great guns."

Almost before the players were off the courts following the last draw, Hughie Batchelor had handed on the "automat" orchestra struck up and young couples were whirling round the floor. Tommy Hodgson, Glenora manager, has the whole under expert surveillance and the social committee has planned some attractive events for the evenings. It's a grand tourney.

Former resident of the city, Mrs. William Little of Victoria, celebrated her 85th birthday recently, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary MacDonald, Mrs. Little came from Glasgow in 1851, in a sailing ship, and lived in Montreal from 1878 to 1936, when she moved to the coast city. She has two sons, Thomas N. of Waskatenau and William E. Little who resides in Hanover. She also has another daughter, Mrs. J. Montgomery of Victoria.

Fast Typists Will Compete In Second Contest Here Tonight

Contestants for the honor of representing Edmonton on the Canadian team in the International Typewriting marathon at Toronto next month will compete in the second round of the contest Wednesday evening (tonight).

The elimination contests are being held at Alberta College, with the finals scheduled for Friday of this week. First round was held on Monday.

Winner of the city eliminations for the past two years, Miss Goldie Hiller is again taking part in the eliminations this year. Three separate tests, each of 15 minutes duration, comprise the contest, which is supervised by Miss Esther Fredeking, typing instructor at Alberta College.

HERE ARE SCORES

Net scores on Monday in words per minute were: Miss Hiller, 108; Sylvia Wilson, 90; Carol Hutchinson, 79; Volberg Jorgenson, 71; Mary Diachuk, 65; and Anne Newman, 64.

Additional entrants will be received if they report at Alberta College in the new building on Macdonald Drive, Wednesday, at 8 p.m., when the second round of the contest starts.

Prize to the winner is a free trip to the Canadian National Exhibition, with all expenses of travel and hotel, $250 a day "spending money" and a $5,000 travel insurance policy.

The entry form will be found on page 8 today.

More People Read Papers Visitor Says

People today are paying more attention to their eyes than formerly, as they are reading newspapers to a greater extent than ever before, G. V. Mackie, Winnipeg, district division manager of the Imperial Optical Company, declared here Wednesday. He is a guest at the Macdonald.

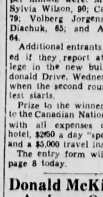

"We find that people are reading newspapers to a greater extent than ever," he said. "Thus, they require their eyes to be in the best of condition and are more careful to have them checked."

In the last war, he said, Canada had to import most of its optical instruments. In this conflict, the Dominion is in a position to export them to all allied countries.

"Mr. Mackie will spend a couple of days here conferring with W. L. Freeman, the company's local representative.

Donald McKinnon Arrives Overseas In Air Contingent

Sgt. Observer Donald McKinnon, R.C.A.F., formerly of Edmonton has arrived overseas according to word received here. He is son of Charles H. McKinnon and the late Mrs. McKinnon of 12043 106 street.

Don McKinnon

A graduate of Eastwood high school, the airman enlisted for active service in August, 1940. Since leaving Edmonton in the airforce grey, he took training at Newbiggin, Glenora manager, has the whole under expert surveillance and the social committee has planned some attractive events for the evenings. It's a grand tourney.

Calgary, Regina, Moosbank and Rivers, Man. Sgt. Observer McKinnon took a prominent part in school sports and held a number of executive positions while at Eastwood.

William Dimond of Edmonton was released from the General Hospital Tuesday after receiving treatment for an amputated leg followwing a fall beneath the wheels of a C.P.R. train from Calgary two weeks ago.

Scientists still are unable to determine whether or not Mara is inhabited despite its close approach to the earth in 1939.

Wheat Yield Is Expected To Be Down This Year

Wheat yield in Alberta this year, from present indications, likely will be considerably below the 1940 average of 21.6 bushels an acre, according to the sixth fortnightly crop report of the provincial government, released Wednesday by Hon. D. Bruce MacMillan, minister of agriculture. Unless the coarse grain area receives ample moisture, the yield of oats and barley cannot be other than disappointing, states the report.

Crops have deteriorated in nearly all parts of the province during the past two weeks, due to extremely high temperatures and lack of rain," continues the report. "Where moisture was adequate the effects of the heat were not serious, being limited to a little burning and the formation of white-tips on wheat. In these areas, however, where moisture conditions were poor, the hot weather and accompanying winds caused serious damage."

PEACE RIVER SATISFACTORY

Along the western border of the province, where earlier rains had created a good stand of grain, the crops have withstood the heat remarkably well and with moderate weather they should fill normally.

The Peace River crops are still satisfactory, but ripening is being hastened by hot weather. Beaverlodge experienced a quarter century heat record of 98.1 degrees on July 17. During the weekend, some rain fell over the central-eastern section of the province. This moisture will revive crops and help fill the grain but cannot be expected to alter the situation materially, as crops are too far advanced. Rain will help late crops and the feed problem.

Crop damage from other causes has not been extensive. Hail has occurred at a few points, but the area of crops destroyed is not great. There are best web worms reported in one or two districts and in the south western section, wheat stem sawfly has appeared.

Forage crops and pastures have suffered from the drought. In most areas pastures are dry but feed supplies are plentiful. Only fair yields of hay are being reported and production of forage crop seed may be affected by the heat.

LIVESTOCK CONDITIONS

Livestock are in quite satisfactory condition in spite of the heat and dry pastures. Feed is plentiful and the growth of young stock is good. In the drought area, some stock owners express concern over the winter feed situation. Swine-raising continues to occupy the spotlight in the livestock industry.

Dairy production has been maintained but continued drought is likely to decrease the flow of milk. Farmers who took the necessary steps to sow late oats for summer pasture for dairy cows will find these pastures particularly useful at the present time.

The poultry industry is normal. Egg production is good and the growth of cockerels and pullets is quite satisfactory.

The hot weather has restricted the flow of honey, but otherwise the beekeeping industry is about normal.

THE QUESTION

Formation of "Four Car Clubs" on the basis of one of the four members driving the other three to and from work each day, has been urged in Toronto by the deputy oil controller, J. L. Stewart, who states that under the plan Canadians can save 50,000,000 gallons annually.

THE ANSWERS

WALKER BLAKE, business manager: Three-quarters of the daily consumption of gasoline by cars could be saved in that way, and it seems to me that Canadians could well co-operate, even if it might prove a little inconvenient at times.

A. E. ROCQUE, credit manager: If Canadians want to assist the government as fully as possible in the war effort, the "Four Car Clubs" should be started all across Canada.

WALTER WILSON, theatre manager: During the last war many people across the Dominion put their cars away for the duration, and I think we should do it again before long. The "Four Car Club seems to be a good idea, and should save a lot of gasoline for war purposes.

JEAN COTE, clerk: I think it is a splendid idea, and that four people could take turns driving me to work. The bicycle can do with a rest.

Registered unemployed in this province last Saturday totalled 1,-818, according to the Alberta Employment Service. This is a decrease over the previous week when the number registered was 1,886. Of the total last Saturday 1,478 were men and 340 women. This city registered 908; Calgary, 508; Lethbridge, 47; Medicine Hat, 131; Drumheller, 34. During last week positions were found for 367 men and 166 women.

Health Course Is Beneficial Visitor Avers

Benefits of a course recently established at the University of Toronto leading to the degree of bachelor of physical and health education will be outlined to members of the University of Alberta medical faculty Wednesday by Dr. E. S. Ryerson, assistant dean of the medical faculty, U. of T.

Dr. Ryerson, accompanied by his wife, is a guest at the Macdonald.

Referring to the new course, Dr. Ryerson said it was of three years' duration and it embodied a new principle in that it placed greater emphasis on physical fitness than heretofore. Up until the time this course was established, physical training was carried out in connection with the arts.

Now, the new course is separate and gives a scientific study of the physically fit person. Health is assessed and a person's condition is determined and any deficiencies that can be made up are attended to.

SOMETHING POSITIVE

"This course recognizes health as something positive and not only freedom from disease," said Dr. Ryerson. "We are scientifically raising the standard of crops, fruits and vegetables and therefore we feel that we should do everything possible to raise the standard of health."

Dr. Ryerson visited the west about four years ago.

The Edmonton Club picnic has been postponed from Sunday, July 27, to Sunday, August 10, it was announced Wednesday by Mrs. A. R. Evans, secretary of the club.

DESIGNED FOR COURT ACTION

Florence Walsh, American designer of practical college clothes, created this smart tennis dress of white sharkskin. There are action pleats in the back, thoroughly action sleeves and rounded pleats over the hips—to keep the dress from sliding upward when the player leaps for a high one. The shorts underneath the skirt are cut out over the hips to make for smoother lines.

Holidays Can Be Enjoyable On Shoestring

Fear of Great Cost Need Not Deter Holiday-Bound

SITTING around the dancing lights of a campfire . . . eating toasted frankfurters . . . and singing those heart-pulling traditional old songs that will long survive the bounce and boogy of the now popular swing and boogy-woogy that is the life of a happy vacation.

Thousands of us face the dilemma this year of selecting a vacation that must, due to war economies, cost very little.

Last year, over one-half of Edmonton spent vacation-time right at home because they did not know that a trip to the shore, the mountains, or both, could be had on less than $50. If you own or have the use of a car, Canada is practically yours. Thirty dollars worth of gas and oil will take you from coast to coast. Four people splitting expenses, can cross the continent and back on $15 each.

Right in our own Alberta are sparkling lakes and gay summer resorts that offer a wide variety of entertainment to the pleasure-bound vacationist . . . and at little cost.

In the opinion of your reporter, what could possibly be more superb than soft summer evenings at the lake, a soft, cool breeze, overhead the twinkling stars, shining so bright, away from the artificiality of city glitter—and tucked far, far away all office and business worries that belong to the roaring city? Sounds wonderful doesn't it? And true for us all if we but seek it.

BICYCLE TRIP

A hiking or bicycle trip is one of the cheapest forms of all vacations. Here Canadian Youth Hostels prove a great boon. Nobody has yet starved on a fifteen-cent breakfast, a thirty-five-cent lunch and a forty-cent dinner. For the small sum of $25 a two-week cycling trip, stopping at the Youth Hostels, may be taken in most places in Canada, and with fun, too, which after all is what one is eternally searching for on a holiday.

Get to know your country. In one fortnight's vacation you might want to sum up one region; next year another. This year, you might view the neat patterns of the Okanagan fruit ranches; the teaming beaches of the seashore or the splendor of the great Canadian Rockies.

Young Edmonton has learned to relax and enjoy vacation time. Mr. and Mrs. Edmonton would be wise to take a hint from their young-sters, who take advantage of the opportunities such as Guide Camps, C.G.I.T. Camps, "Y" camps and different church camps offered each summer.

Wake up, Mr. and Mrs. Edmonton, get out and enjoy life while you can. If you have the spirit and the will to have a good time, you can. The idea that it takes money to enjoy yourself is out-dated. Join the hundreds of vacation enthusiasts, who have learned to travel and play . . . on a shoestring . . . Have fun!

Russian Women Do War Tasks "Behind The Lines" Willingly

MOSCOW, July 23.—(AP)—Soviet Russia leaves the actual fighting to men, but hundreds of women have gone to the war front, serving chiefly in the medical services. Many women who are not doctors or nurses are serving in military headquarters as interpreters, stenographers, clerks and similar positions. Thousands of them are wearing natty uniforms featuring a blue shirt, khaki tunic and peaked cap. But woman's place in war has been designated formally by the Soviets as behind the lines, replacing men who have gone to the front.

REPORTS DISMISSED

Reports abroad that Russian women have been fighting as troops in the ranks of the Red Army have been dismissed here as German propaganda or stemming from isolated incidents. For instance, there was the case of the washwoman in a western border town who dropped her washing when the Germans came, grabbed a rifle and helped the local regiment face the attack. There was another instance in which eight Karelian girls joined with troops in fighting on the Finnish front.

But the general tendency has been to discourage any Amazonian ambitions among Russian women and turn their zeal into other channels. Training courses have been provided for women for tasks in factories and on farms. The Stalin automobile factory at Moscow, for example, is training 200 girls to become skilled mechanics.

WAR TASKS

The newspaper Pravda, whose leading editorial daily lays down the law for some branch of Soviet life, had its say about women early in the war, outlining their specific tasks as:

1. Toiling in factories and fields.
2. Training in first aid.
3. Organizing air raid and gas defence.
4. Watching for speculators, gossips and panic-mongers.
5. Maintaining discipline and helping to guard cities under martial law.

Pravda estimated there are more than 11,000,000 women working in factories and offices, and more than 19,000,000 toiling on farms.

Summertime In Britain Turns Feminine Thoughts To Fashions

Written for The Canadian Press
By ALISON SETTLE

LONDON, July 23.—(CP)—Now that warm weather has finally arrived, milady is sporting summer clothing in what may be her last fling before clothes-rationing laws her wardrobe may oblige her to turn to simpler, more serviceable dress-wear.

On the streets much navy blue is to be seen, often with tieslik in the red-and-blue stripes of the Guards regimental colors to tie the jacket, or making a belt to the dress or, suet, running down the brief sleeves.

That tiny check which is called 'sponge-back check" is a summertime favorite in a year that has had grey skies and cold winds until late. The heroine of Noel Coward's new play has chosen it in grey, white and lemon tiny checking. It makes a pleasant town-and-country outfit to wear away for week-ends. Stripes are very broad, not narrow, at the moment.

A smart favorite is a suit of broad grey and maize-yellow stripe, with blown-out pockets and the forward thrust hipline which women are taking and which accentuates their small waists.

Crests and monograms are being embroidered high on the shoulders of blouses and dresses and regimental crests are particularly popular. One of the most charming toilettes of the summer, very light and brief, is worked all over with names of the ships of the navy. Another is worked in gold and silver thread on blue with Prime Minister Churchill's memorable words.

FRINGE REPLACES FUR

Fringe is used for the between-season suits to replace fur. Fringe decorates collars and tiny capes to jackets, over the rounded (but not sloped) shoulders which most English women prefer. You get the fringe, in shorter form, repeated on the pockets of either the jacket or the dress. And longer silk fringe decorates some of the closely dropped black dinner dresses.

As in suits, so in dinner dresses, there is nothing between the wide, wide skirt and the clinging line, often accentuated by an inset of color down the side—as in the army officer's dress trousers—and wide velvet skirts worn with tight lisp, close and tiny bodices too, built to show the bustline.

Between these two comes, however, the ever useful shirt-waist dress. It does not make new fashion lines as do the others but it is infinitely comfortable with its wide bishop or brief puff sleeves its blouse top bagged in, and its gentle skirtline to the ground.

SILVER, GOLD THREAD

It has new touches this year of silver and gold thread embroidery of tiny leaves or flowers around the buttonholes, by similar embroidery on collars and revers, and also by wide dolman armholes, sleeves contrasting to bodice in color but the two joined by more of this fine metal thread worked in the shape of leaves or garlands. With this a little fringed "hankie" is worn gypsy fashion on the back of the head.

Gracie Fields' Real Ambition Is To Live Quiet Life Of Housewife

By ADELAIDE KERR

NEW YORK, July 23—(AP)—Gracie Fields' real ambition is a living way from the music halls where she got her singing fame. What she really wants to do, she says, is to retire, build a house and make a home. Fireplaces, hand-embroidered napkins, geraniums on the windowsill and all that.

Miss Fields, who has completed a long war bond tour in Canada and the United States, is England's most famous and highest paid music hall star. Her husband says she is rarid to have got more money for singing than most kings do for singing—more than $1,000,000 a year.

Now she wants to change footlights for lamplight in a house built for her and her husband, Monty Banks, Hollywood actor and director. She has returned to England to help fight the war with song. Under the auspices of Britain's Entertainment National Service Association, she will entertain munitions workers in factories.

Her entertainment is designed to take the place of movie theatres which were bombed and give the factory workers a little fun without interrupting their work for too long. Miss Fields doesn't expect to take a troupe with her. She will just stand alone on a truck or a chair, while somebody thumps a portable piano, and give-in that throaty voice which has made them laugh and weep from Canada to Africa.

The blond star, wearing a simple little black and white print frock, without a single jewel, poured me a cup of coffee in her Park avenue apartment recently, curled up on a little chintz sofa and told about her coming trip home.

"I'm doing my best for my country, while the war's on," she said with a grave face. "It won't be my first visit to London. When the war broke out, I went to France and sang for British and French troops around Rheims and Lille. Then just before Dunkerque, I went back home and for the last year I've been singing for war benefits in Canada and the United States.

AM A BIT TIRED

"But I hope it will soon be over. I don't want to stop this running around. I'm a bit tired. My husband says he's married to a rolling ticket. Homes are my hobby and I'm always living in somebody else's. I want to make a home, and do the cooking for my husband, me."

Miss Fields went on: "Then I want to adopt a couple of children. I love children and they will make it a real home."

(Some years ago the star established the Gracie Fields Orphanage in Peacehaven, Sussex, England, and not long ago provided five thousand pounds for the building and equipment of a new wing. She also owns a house near by.)

School Pupils Get Letters From Britain

Youngsters of Grade III of Rutherford school, who a short time ago made up bundles of clothing which they donated to the Women's Convalescent and Children's Refugee Fund to send to Britain, received the thrill of their young lives, when they received letters of thanks for which they, and all other children who helped the motherland were told to be a great extent their gifts were appreciated.

These youngsters, to defray the cost of sending the parcels overseas, held cake dances and subsequently sold them.

Special classes at Queen's Avenue school have also done great work for the children of Britain. They have collectively made a very handsome quilt which has gone overseas to keep warm some victims of enemy action.

Edmonton Girl Is Married In Vancouver

Miss Hilda Bailey and Pte. Newton, Toronto, Married Tuesday

VANCOUVER, July 23.—A pretty wedding of interest to many friends in Edmonton and in eastern Canada was solemnized in Vancouver at the early morning hour of eight o'clock on Tuesday of this week, when Miss Hilda Bailey of Edmonton, became the bride of Pte. Leonard Newton of Toronto, Ontario. Rev. Father Campbell officiated at the ceremony.

Pte. Newton is associated with the headquarters staff of the Lincoln and Welland Regiment presently stationed at the Pacific Coast.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Marguerite Bailey of Edmonton, and Mr. Elmer Doyle was best man.

For her wedding the bride wore an afternoon redingote frock in green sheer and cool white accessories. She carried a sheaf of Sweetheart roses in soft shades of yellow to harmonize with her frock.

The bridesmaid wore a redingote frock and shoulder corsage of summer flowers.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served in the immediate friends and relatives of the happy couple, at the Devon Cafe. The table was decorated with summer blossoms and centered with the wedding cake.

Mrs. Bailey, of Edmonton, the bride's mother, who was present for the marriage, wore a printed silk dress and matching accessories.

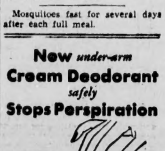

Later in the morning, the bride and bridegroom left by boat for Victoria, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Deanna Durbin's House Has First Air Shelter Built in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, July 23—(BUP)—Just one more word about what women are doing these days. This time it concerns a house—the one that the Canadian actress Deanna Durbin and her husband, Vaughn Paul are building in the swanky Brentwood district of Hollywood. Termed "just a simple English cottage" by Miss Durbin, the dwelling boast the first air raid shelter constructed in Hollywood. At first the couple said the heavily built basement room was for air quakes. But Deanna now has admitted that it is also for air raids—just in case.

Dorothy Dix Says:

If every girl baby were consulted beforehand about what gift, above all others, she wished her Fairy Godmother to drop into her cradle, she would undoubtedly exclaim: Give me beauty! For she would think that if she had beauty she could get all the balance for herself.

Dorothy Dix

And in this choice she would be sustained by the age old theory that a woman's face is her fortune, and that it is more important for her to be a good-looker than to possess all the other charms and virtues combined. It is this fanatical belief in the potency of feminine pulchritude that causes women to endure tortures in acquiring artificial beauty when they failed to be endowed with the genuine article.

Of course, men are largely responsible for women's belief that it is only the living picture that gets hung on the wall, for when they hear of a new woman their first and only question about her concerns her looks. They never ask if she is intelligent; if she is suave and diplomatic; if she is an interesting and entertaining conversationalist, or even if she is a good dancer, or if she plays a good game of golf or bridge. All of which would naturally make a girl think that men were beauty worshipers and none but the glamorous could ever expect to be escorted to the altar.

Yet such is far from being the case, as even a glance at the married women of our acquaintance will show, not many of whom could ever have taken a blue ribbon in a bathing beauty contest even in their palmiest days. They are good, kind, clever, lovable looking women, but they have no faces that would have launched a thousand ships. No, they wouldn't even have floated a skiff.

As a matter of record, the girl who is merely pretty has a better chance of making a good marriage than the raving beauty has, and there are many good and sufficient reasons for this. One is that the average man is scared of a Miss America. She is out of his class.

He knows he couldn't provide her with the fine clothes and houses and cars and jewels that would make the proper setting for her. So while he admires her he doesn't crave her for his own, and he no more thinks of marrying her than he does of buying an Old Master as an ornament for his bungalow parlor.

On her part, Miss America thinks that she rates, at least, a millionaire and while she is waiting for him to come along old maidenhood frequently perches her. Also, she has almost always been flattered and spoiled, and that isn't the kind of a woman a man wants for a wife. All of which is consolation for the plain girls. The beauties need none.

DOROTHY DIX.

McCoy Health Service

On making an investigation recently among a group of men and women I was very much surprised to find that only a low percentage of the group were swimmers. In my opinion, every child should be taught the art of swimming, if for no other purpose than to be able to utilize the ability to swim, when an emergency arises later in life. Bathing has been used for centuries as a curative measure, and the old Roman bath houses, now in ruins, are monuments to an era when the value of water in healing the sick was greatly appreciated. Almost everyone knows of the great work done in restoring and reconstructing paralytics at Warm Springs, Georgia, and this is a living example of what supervised swimming will do for those afflicted. It is only common sense to realize that frequent swimming by those in good health, will increase the muscle power of the body, improve the circulation, and produce a general feeling of well-being. While seabathing is probably more stimulating and adventuresome than the fresh water pool, it may also be more enervating if the period spent in the water is too long. The length of time in the water should be gradually increased according to the effect on the individual. In cold weather, two or three minutes in salt or fresh water, followed by a brisk rubdown will have a splendid effect, and in the summer time the whole day may be spent in and out of the water. The swimmer may always remain in the water longer than the non-swimmer, the reason being that in the act of swimming, a great amount of heat is being produced which compensates for the loss of heat on the surface of the body. Recent investigations prove that sea baths are invaluable treatment of tuberculosis, especially in the early stages. Of course care must be taken to see that the patient has no fever, and that the bathing is properly supervised. Sea baths are also of value in the treatment of asthma, and they are useful in accustoming the skin to changes in temperature and damp. Those accustomed to sea bathing will retain the resistance against colds, and are less likely to suffer from rheumatism when subjected to conditions which produce these troubles in others. Those away from the sea, may derive some of the benefits of sea bathing by the addition of sea salt to the ordinary water, in the bath tub at home. This of course is not as effective as the salt water pool, or the sea itself. Another valuable aid in many conditions, is the sitz bath. Space does not permit my giving directions here, but readers who would like to have a copy of Dr. McCoy's article entitled "Hot and Cold Sitz Baths" are invited to address a request to the McCoy Health Service, enclosing a large self-addressed envelope and 5 cents in stamps and a copy will be mailed promptly.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

For one reason or another—the fashion of open-toed sandals or the less pleasant tendency for feet to swell and ache—we are more foot conscious in summer than at any other season. It is easy to believe the statistics that seven out of every ten have trouble with their feet and that the remaining three will have unless they watch out.

There is so much current interest in feet that an "American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Feet" has been formed in Brooklyn, N.Y., and the founders stoutly insist that they have as much crusading to do as any other cruelty prevention organization.

One of the main causes of foot trouble, they tell me, is failure to have shoes fitted properly. Here is a simple test by which you can determine whether your shoes are long enough. Take the shoe and fit the outside sole—bottom up—to the sole of your foot. The joint of your big toe should coincide with the widest part of the shoe. Both segments act as hinges and when they function together, the foot society people say, you can even get rid of callouses.

You will have to trust to your own sensitivity to tell whether or not your shoes are wide enough. If your foot feels the least bit crowded, you probably need a wider size.

In summer, it is suggested that you wear shoes with a wider last and a broader toe than usual to allow for additional foot room. If you are buying shoes now, take a tip from the society and buy them at the end of a day's work or shopping. At such a time your feet will be larger and more sensitive and you can be more certain of correct fitting.

After you have gone to the trouble of having your shoes fitted properly to take care of them. Don't go around in run-over heels, or you will throw all the 26 bones of your feet out of alignment. You will also throw yourself off balance and develope backache and headache.

Having gone to such pains about your shoes don't spoil everything by wearing stockings that are too small. Many a woman who orders a size eight should ask for an eight and one half. The best rule here is to have your stocking half an inch longer than your foot. That gives you toe room.

If what you want is foot aid, take contrast baths, first hot then cold. Scrub your feet vigorously to bring up the circulation and dry them thoroughly. Then use one of the powder perspiration checkers or give them an alcohol rub as the final touch. You might also like to sprinkle the inside of your shoes with powder on the very hot days.

A little foot exercise is an excellent thing. When you are brushing your teeth of a morning, make a habit of standing pigeon-toed on the outer borders of your feet, toes curled under. And keep your feet flexible by wearing flat-heeled shoes around the house.

The Art of Singing Well Can Be Studied at Home

Bathroom Soloist To Radio Star

Hold that note! Maybe your bathroom baritone—or tenor—could be trained to make a big impression on a radio audience!

That's not such an impossible idea, you know. Nearly everyone has the physical equipment for singing well. You only need to learn how to use your lungs, throat and resonators to best advantage.

One of the first things is to coordinate your breathing and your singing. Draw air into the lower part of the lungs and speak rapidly the phrase "la-la-la-la-la." Repeat with other vowel sounds — "lay," "ee," "ly," "loo."

When you've adjusted your intake of air so you can speak these phrases evenly, sing them as in the music with our sketch. Use the middle of your voice, strive for a sustained stream of sound and breathe where the V (breath sign) indicates.

Then try singing up and down the scale with all notes equal in tone and your throat muscles perfectly relaxed. Not so easy? Simple exercises help you do it.

Our 32-page booklet shows how to use your voice as professionals do. Gives exercises to make your singing apparatus function effectively; explains breath control, tone color.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Teach Yourself to Sing" to The Edmonton Bulletin, Home Service, 60 Front Street, West, Toronto, Ontario. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet

McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. McKENNEY, America's Card Authority

A correspondent who wishes his name withheld sends me today's hand, which he witnessed in a rubber game at a social club. Here is a once-in-a-lifetime hand with a vengeance!

The bidding proceeded normally until South got the notion of trying for slam. He thought he might be misunderstood if he made a conventional bid of four no trump, to start slam bidding since the partners had already agreed on no trump, as the proper contract.

So he tried a kind of asking bid in spades, expecting that at worst his partner would go back to four no trump and the spade bid might then operate to discourage what looked from his hand like the most dangerous opening lead.

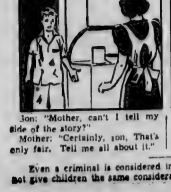

But North passed and East could not resist doubling South, still trusting his partner, passed to leave the decision to North. North, evidently not understanding the situation, passed, and there was South playing four spades with only three small spades in each hand.

But the pattern of split hands, 4-3-3-3, all around the table came to his rescue. He was able to cash three tricks in each side suit, without having any round ruffed.

Dummy was left in the lead to play the fourth diamond, and now East could not prevent the jack of spades from making for the tenth trick. Of course East blamed his partner for not opening a trump. But how could West guess the fantastic situation?

Points For Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Jon: "Mother, can't I tell my side of the story?"

Mother: "Certainly, son. That's only fair. Tell me all about it."

Mother: "No—don't interrupt and try to make excuses. Mrs. Jones phoned and told me about your fight in her yard."

Even a criminal is considered innocent until proven guilty. Why not give children the same consideration?

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

We hear a great deal about school projects; and parents are familiar with the many ways in which a child can learn, not only facts, but how to develop wholesome personal relationships through co-operation.

What about home projects? The things parents do together for their mutual interest are sure cures for selfishness and are fertile sources of happiness. In such cases, everything counts, all he can and everybody profits.

Here is a nice home project, which, astoundingly enough, the mother presents apologetically. Probably because, as she says, her relatives frown upon it. But they need not. It is a perfect co-operative venture.

"My family thinks I am foolish for spending time and a plan as I have in mind. Even my husband—who is much older than I—cannot see why it is necessary.

"Our children range in ages from 3½ to 15 and are active, normal and healthy, though they have been getting over measles and chickenpox. What I would like to know is where to get books and pamphlets free, or for a small cost, containing plans for constructing playground equipment?

"I have priced the ready-made kind and they are too expensive for me. I want a swing, a chinning pole and a teeter-totter, also plans for a small tennis or badminton court. I have about 125 feet square to devote to the playground itself.

"It will have to be a home venture, from start to finish, as the children and I will have to do all the work. My 15-year-old boy is large for his age and running over with energy. A project such as this would keep the children busy and result in a playground which we need for ourselves, the neighbors, and a number of nephews and nieces."

I am sending you my own plans for playground equipment taken from a government booklet on that subject. Try out the simpler plans first—such as a turning pole—and work up to more complicated things.

Perhaps the boy's manual training teacher would help him interpret the plans, or some handy amateur carpenter-father in the neighborhood may help him, since the neighborhood is to enjoy this playground when finished.

I feel sure you can get plans for laying out your tennis or badminton court from any sporting goods store carrying the equipment for these sports.

Your idea is splendid. Don't let anyone discourage you.

My leaflet, Backyard Play Equipment, is available free on request. If you want it, sent a three-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

U.S. Uses Symbol

WATERTOWN, N.Y., July 23—(AP)—Britain's "V" campaign has supporters at the nearby Pine Camp Military reservation. The letter"—bo'h as a letter and in Morse code—was seen on sidewalks, and auto windshields, while at the post hospital some physicians and nurses stamped the letter on their arms in indelible ink.

Bulletin Patterns

Gay Button-Front Cotton Mode

No summer wardrobe is complete without a simple button-front model. Anne Adams has given Pattern 4800 such good styling that you will not only wear it at home, but to market and about the neighborhood as well. The smart, useful front buttoning will save you time in laundering and dressing. You'll love the cool shape of the neckline. The novelty, spirited yokes hold the full-cut bodice lines in gathers, aided by well-placed side slashes high above the waist. A sash from the sides ties in back; rick-rac makes a merry trim about both yokes and sleeves. This frock is made in 40 few pieces that, with the Sewing Instructor on hand, you'll finish in a jiffy!

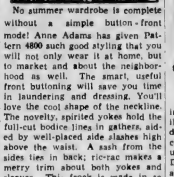

Pattern 4800 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 3¼ yards 35 inch fabric and 1¾ yards rick-rac.

Send twenty cents in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size name, address and style number.

Send your order to The Edmonton Bulletin, Pattern Department, 60 Front Street West, Toronto Ontario.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

Minute Make-Ups

Choose a lipstick that is nearly indelible as possible. Apply it heavily. Leave on while you dress and do your hair. Now press a folded cosmetic tissue, between the lips until all the top layer is removed. Dampen a bit of cotton with cologne and press gently on lips.

You will find no embarrassing smears on glasses, hankies or cigarettes. It takes an extra minute to apply lipstick in this manner but is a neat trick!

Be Sure You Buy Corn With Husks For Use

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Green corn is one of the blessings of summer. In buying it, select ears with husks clinging smoothly. Do not buy husked corn at the market. Corn tastes far better if the husks are not removed until just before cooking.

To cook, remove husks, cut off stem end and the tip and remove all silk. Have a large kettle of boiling water ready, put in corn and cook only from 7 to 12 minutes, depending on size. Remove immediately.

To cook corn off the cob, cut the kernels from cob with sharp knife slicing downward. Then scrape over the surface again, removing the milk. Add milk to cut-off kernels. For each ear (one) tablespoon butter. Melt butter in frying pan, turn in corn, and cook over low heat until cooked. Stir frequently. Should cook from 10 to 12 minutes. Season to taste.

SNAP BEAN SUCCOTASH

Cook beans almost tender. To each cup of cooked beans, add 1-3 cup corn cut from cob and cooked as described above. Cook together until beans and corn are tender. Salt with butter liberally and season delicately.

CORN OYSTERS

(Serves 4)

One cup corn pulp, 1 egg, ½ cup bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon melted butter, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon sugar, pepper to taste, ½ teaspoon grated onion

Scrape corn from cob. Beat egg well, and add the scraped raw corn pulp. Add bread crumbs, melted butter, onion, sugar and seasoning. Have hot frying pan ready with melted bacon fat. Drop corn mixture by teaspoon into hot fat. Brown on one side, turn and brown on other. Serve at once.

CORN PUDDING

(Serves 4 to 6)

Two cups corn cut from cob, 3 eggs, 1 cup milk, ½ cup cream or top milk, 1 tablespoon melted butter, salt, pepper, ½ tablespoon sugar, 1 teaspoon paprika, fine bread crumbs.

Beat eggs well. Add milk, cream, melted butter, corn and seasoning. Pour into greased casserole. Sprinkle bread crumbs over top and dust with paprika. Place casserole in pan of hot water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until set, about one hour. Insert knife in center. If it comes out clean, pudding is done.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST — Cantaloupe, cracked-wheat cereal, toast, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON—Creamed broccoli on toast, whole-wheat muffins, stewed blackberries, cookies, tea, milk.

DINNER — Tomato juice, cold cuts, corn pudding, raw vegetable salad, chocolate layer cake, coffee, milk.

So hard are the seeds of a South American palm that they are carved into buttons.

$25,000 Loss For Blaze At Spruce Grove

Min, and a butcher shop owned by M. McMean, in this building, suffered damage from smoke.

Although exact cause of the fire has not yet been determined definitely, it is thought that the blaze started as a result of a flame from a blowtorch used in welding in the rear of the Lentz garage.

The garage and its binder twine was still smouldering on Wednesday morning.

The Lentz family, the Callihans and Kellys are temporarily homeless as a result of the fire. Each family had been residing in the rear portions of the buildings destroyed.

BUCKET BRIGADE

When the fire started, residents of the town speedily formed a bucket brigade and water was passed from hand to hand between wells and the burning buildings. Fanned by a brisk breeze the flames soon got beyond control of the firefighters. The three main buildings in the path of the fire were all of frame construction and burned very rapidly.

A call was put in for the Edmonton fire brigade and a chemical unit was soon on the scene, but too late to save the three buildings in question.

The large two-storey building owned by Mrs. Schwindt is partially constructed of brick and firemen were able to minimize the damage there.

WIND SAVES TOWN

A providential shift of the wind shortly after the fire started probably saved the entire town from destruction.

The Lentz Garage suffered heavy last loss of any single structure, damage being estimated at $6,900. Mr. Lentz also lost all personal belongings, including $280 in cash that was in a drawer in the room of his residence.

It was the second fire that brought complete loss to the Lentz family. They were burned out at Barrhead five years ago.

The Callihan family was also hard hit. Mrs. Callihan had time only to grab her purse and a few small personal belongings before she and the children had to flee from the blazing building.

The homeless families are staying with friends and neighbors for the time being.

The cafe and confectionery owned by the Callihans was valued at $3,000. About $1,000 insurance was carried.

The Kelly store and stock is valued at $6,000. There was insurance to the extent of $4,000 carried.

Fire Chief Macgregor said Tuesday that the combination equipment stored in Spruce Grove for five hours, until the fire was completely out. The chief said he had been told in Spruce Grove that the fire started when a welder in the garage accidentally ignited a pile of binder twine.

the campaign has reached its crest and another lull may result while the Germans reorganize, perfect their lengthening communication lines and gather their forces for a new assault. That was the case two weeks ago, when the impetus of the first drive spent itself against the main Russian defences.

If the Germans do not make marked advances by the end of this week, it would not be surprising to see the fighting tapering off in the central and northern sectors. At present, it is reported in full blast all the way from Finland to the Ukraine front.

HARRYING GERMANS

The Germans have made some advances in the Smolensk sector fronting Moscow, but it is not yet certain that Smolensk has fallen—although the Germans claimed it 10 days ago. Some German advance units have penetrated around and eastward of Smolensk, but there seem to be Russian units and guerillas still west of Smolensk, harrying the Germans from the rear.

The Germans and their Finnish allies also have advanced to the region of Petrozavodsk, on Lake Onega east of Lake Ladoga. They claim to have taken the town, which would mean the cutting of the Arctic railroad from Murmansk to Leningrad, that would impair Russia's ability to hold the important Arctic port of Murmansk, from which sector there have been no recent reports.

Out of the fog of contradictory communiques, the true features of the war claims frequently have been exaggerated, less by the high command than by official news agencies and anonymous "authoritative" spokesmen. These sources have claimed within the last two weeks that the Russian armies were routed, disorganized and in full retreat; that the air force was shattered and the "Stalin Line" broken at all important points. Present developments indicate nothing of the sort.

Apparently the Germans will have to achieve some spectacular success before Hitler can launch his expected general European peace proposal on the basis of an imminent Russian collapse.

The bombing of Moscow, which went unscathed for a month of the war, may even be a confession of weakness rather than of strength, although that is problematical. Still, it could be that Hitler, not having vowed the Russians on the fighting front, is seeking to spread confusion in their rear and to impress them and the outside world with his striking power.

Viscount Bennett Now Member House Of Lords; Ceremony Is Impressive

Is Installed

By HAROLD FAIR

LONDON, July 23.—(CP)—In a ceremony steeped in history and pageantry, Viscount Bennett was installed as a member of the House of Lords today.

Wearing the scarlet robes of a viscount with ermine collar and gold trimmings, the former Canadian prime minister was introduced by Viscount Greenwood, who is the only other Canadian-born viscount in the peerage. He was the new peer's chief sponsor.

About 35 peers, including the Earl of Bessborough, former Governor-General of Canada, were in the House to greet the new member, who was created to a viscountcy in the King's birthday honors list.

McNAUGHTON PRESENT

Alice Miller, for many years Lord Bennett's secretary, watched the ceremony from the visitors' gallery, while Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps, and Mrs. McNaughton waited in an ante-chamber to greet Lord Bennett when he left.

Soon after Viscount Simon, Lord Chancellor, took his seat on the woolsack to mark the opening of the sitting, the ceremony began. A cry was heard in the corridors: "Way for the Black Rod. Hats off, strangers." Then a little procession began to enter the house.

First came the tall, stately figure of the Yeoman Usher of the Black Rod in black velvet and bearing the gold-tipped wand from which he takes his name.

Immediately behind came the Garter King-at-Arms, resplendent in herald's dress, with richly embroidered tabard bearing the emblems of the Lions of England, the Lion Rampant of Scotland, and the Irish Harp.

Lord Bennett was preceded by Lord Greenwood and followed by Viscount Hailsham, former lord chancellor, a close personal friend. Both were dressed similar to the new viscount.

The procession made its way up the house and on approaching the woolsack Lord Bennett on bended knee presented his letters patent to Lord Simon, who had doffed his wig for the more formal black tricorne. Lord Simon handed them to a clerk-at-the-table clerk who conducted Lord Bennett to the table of the house.

The letters patent were read in full and gave "all lords, spiritual and temporal, and other subjects whatsoever to whom these present shall come—greeting."

Then it informed them of the elevation of the King's "right trusty and well beloved councillor, the degree, style, dignity and honor of viscount" and conferring the same upon his heirs and successors.

After reading the letters patent the summons of the new Viscount to attend parliament also was read, a formality that nevertheless held peculiar significance in this time of war as the new peer was reminded that considering the difficulties of affairs and the dangers intending, waiving all excuses, you will be with speed present to treat and give us counsel in affairs aforesaid."

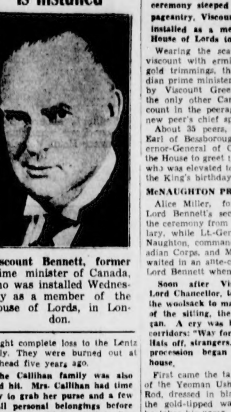

OATH OF ALLEGIANCE

In a firm voice Lord Bennett then took the oath of allegiance to the King, kissed a small red bible and signed the Roll of Parliament.

Lord Bennett next was conducted to the Viscounts' bench which is the first bench further from the Throne of the Lord Chancellor where the opposition sits in normal times.

There, on the left hand side of the Garter King-at-Arms, Lord Bennett and his sponsors took seats, rose three times and saluted Lord Simon by taking off their hats and bowing.

This done, the process once more approached the Woolsack, Lord Bennett shook hands with Lord Simon and left the house.

Drum Major — By Vida Hurst

KATHLEEN O'CONNOR, 17, is drum major for the American Legion band in a small California town where her father, MATTHEW, has started her training in the entertainment field, a career he has planned for his beautiful daughter ever since her mother's death. Though a druggist of moderate means, Matt has lavished luxury upon Kathleen. She is gay despite his refusal to let her go out with one boy more than a few times. Upon being graduated from high school, Kathleen dreams of a happy summer with the younger set, including DEAN, a special boy friend. Her father, however, announces he has sold his store and is taking her to San Francisco to study voice. She is heartbroken. Dean, too, is remorseful. But the O'Connors leave for San Francisco. There they find a small apartment, and Kathleen begins her voice lessons with a teacher recommended by her AUNT NORA O'CONNOR, buyer for a department store. Lonely in the apartment while her father is seeking work, Kathleen opens the door, is greeted by two rough looking men. The men, growing beards for a celebration, ask her to march as a drum major in the parade. When they mention pay, she consents. Her father gets the promise of a job before the parade during which she sees and speaks to an attractive young man, whose name she doesn't know is JIMMY.

CHAPTER FIVE

Matthew O'Connor was waiting for his daughter when she reached home. At his instigation she had taken a taxi, but although he was cheerless living room and her spirits sank.

"I guess I will lie down for awhile," she said listlessly. "Maybe I'm tireder than I thought."

Events happened rapidly after that. First of all to her own surprise Matthew secured the position in the drug store on Mission st. It was a relief to both of them to have him out of the house. It left Kathleen free to spend her own day as she liked. How glad she was that he liked. How glad she was that he was not at home to hear the telephone call which came the following noon.

"Is this Miss Kathleen O'Connor?" She replied thinking it must be someone from the American Legion.

"This is Jimmy Crane," he informed her.

"I don't think I know of anyone by that name," she began, then she heard the delighted chuckle which sounded like . But it couldn't be. Or could it?

"We haven't been properly introduced," he admitted, "if that's what you mean. But I hope you aren't going to hold that against me."

Uncertain what to say, conscious of a surge of delight that spread through every vein, Kathleen could not speak.

absorbed in his new position that he did not notice the unusual excitement in his daughter's manner nor the fact that dinner was ready earlier than usual. She served him eagerly, listening to everything he had to say. Waiting until he had finished his chocolate pudding before she asked carelessly, "Do you mind if I go out tonight?"

"Not alone?"

"No. One of the boys I met yesterday telephoned this morning. He seems very nice, but I didn't promise for sure until you've had a chance to see him. I told him he could call tonight if he liked."

To conceal her anxiety she rose and began to carry out the dishes.

"One of the boys in the band?" Matthew inquired.

"A friend of one of them. Here's your pipe, Daddy. Why don't you smoke while I wash up? It won't take me long."

Matthew felt in an expansive mood. It would be nice for Kathleen to make a few friends. Keep her from missing that boy at home.

Matthew even washed the dishes so that she would have plenty of time to get dressed. A fact he re-concerned about her fatigue she assured him that she was too excited to be weary.

"You'd better take your uniform off and go to bed for awhile," Matthew said tenderly.

"I honestly don't feel as tired as I usually do. Maybe it's because it was all so different."

The image of the boy with his laughing gray eyes and resolute mouth was still stamped in her mind. The rest of the parade was only a background for his strong, young face.

Matthew said, "You were wonderful, honey! I saw some cameramen taking your picture."

His words brought her back to the

"Please don't be annoyed with me," the voice said less confidently. "I got your name and address from a friend of mine in the band. I hoped perhaps you would have dinner with me."

EYES SPARKLE

Roses were in her cheeks, a thousand stars sparkled in her eyes as she said demurely, "But I don't know anything about you."

"Okay, I'll tell you. I work for the Imco Typewriter Company. You can find that in the telephone book and check on it if you like. I have charge of the service department. High school graduate and a year in junior college. Second lieutenant in the national guard. Twenty-four years old, industrious and reasonably intelligent, though I may not look it."

"You don't look that old," Kathleen said faintly, deciding not to tell him that she was not yet 18.

"I realize that you are not accustomed to dating men you don't know," Jimmy continued. "But since you've just come to the city —you see I discovered that about you, too—you might enjoy seeing the town. Please say yes, Miss O'Connor. I give you my word you won't be sorry. Let me come out, anyway, and talk it over."

"There certainly can't be anything wrong with that," Kathleen decided.

As she replaced the telephone she was wondering what she would tell Matthew. Naturally he would ask where she had met Jimmy. But while her father might not object to her going out with him once or twice she knew he would not like Jimmy if he knew her interest was more than casual.

Fortunately, her father was so called afterward in fury of self disgust.

When Jimmy arrived, Kathleen pretended not to be ready. A deliberate delay on her part so that Daddy wouldn't think it mattered to her. When she finally joined them they were deep in a discussion of baseball.

She had worn her blue crepe with the pearl beads Aunt Nora had given her for Christmas and their sheen brought out the waxen quality of her skin and deepened the violet in her eyes.

She said demurely, "Good evening, Mr. Crane! I'm sorry to have kept you waiting."

Jimmy rose. He shouldn't have looked at her like that, but fortunately Matthew was too busy admiring her himself to observe the expression in Jimmy's eyes.

"Your father and I have been having a fine time. It seems we're both baseball fans."

Kathleen seated herself beside her father on the davenport, and the conversation proceeded as if she were not there. Matthew liked nothing better than an audience and this young man with the frank gray eyes was the most attentive listener he had found since leaving home.

It was at least an hour before Jimmy said, "I'd like to show your daughter a little of our night life, if you don't object."

"You won't keep her out late?" Matthew asked quickly. "She's studying voice, you know and has to keep in good condition."

Jimmy promised, and Kathleen put on her soft blue hat and the gray fur coat. They walked out of the apartment soberly. But when they had reached the lower hall they glanced at each other and burst into laughter.

Debunker

Dr. Clarence Mills, authority on Medical Climatology, has found that there is nothing to the idea that girls mature earlier in the tropics than in temperate climates. In fact, it is just the opposite. He found that the age of adolescence was from one to three years later among tropical peoples than in temperate climates. The same was true of general physical and mental development. Extreme of heat and cold both produce delay in general development. Even Mediterranean peoples were found to be much slower of development than their European neighbors further north. The chief reason why tropical children were once believed to mature earlier lies in the fact that a girl at 15 in the tropics is actually as little developed that she appears to be about 12, and is so classified by casual observers.

United States Watching East Crisis Closely

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

WASHINGTON, July 23—(AP)—Some Far Eastern experts expressed the view today that underlying Japan's reported new demands on Indo-China was a Tokyo determination to place Japanese forces in easy striking distance of the rich Netherlands East Indies and Britain's strategic Singapore naval base.

These authorities, declining to be quoted by name, said the demands undoubtedly called for virtual Japanese domination of France's Far Eastern possession. Should Vichy fail to capitulate quickly, they added, the Japanese could be expected to open an immediate offensive against Indo-China.

Press dispatches from Vichy were confined to a bare statement that the Vichy and Japanese governments were negotiating in regard to Indo-China.

United States officials were watching the situation intently. President Roosevelt took occasion at his press conference yesterday to reveal a navy report that Tokyo had imposed a censorship on both radio and cable. He answered affirmatively when asked whether he considered this action significant.

POSSIBLE STEPS

What steps the United States government contemplated in view of developments however, were not disclosed. Although several possibilities were believed to be under consideration, these well-informed quarters believed, included:

1—Action under the Neutrality Act to forbid United States ships and citizens from venturing into any new combat zone delineated by the President.

2—Extension of export control restrictions which would stop shipments of oil—necessary to Japan's war machine and industries—and other essential goods and supplies to Japan.

3—Adoption of additional precautionary measures at United States Pacific outposts because of the proximity of Indo-China to the Philippines.

Because of the well-established policy in such matters it appeared to be a foregone conclusion that whatever action was taken would be with the full knowledge and co-operation of Britain whose interests in the far Pacific closely parallel those of this country.

In fact, in London Vernon Bartlett, an independent member of parliament, said in a signed article in the News Chronicle that he believed British-American discussion already had ended in complete agreement as to steps to be taken should Japan move southward.

FEEBLE RESISTANCE

Indo-China, cut off from France by the war, would be able to put up only feeble resistance to a large-scale Japanese invasion, according to military experts, even if the Vichy government supported its Far Eastern colony.

Invasion of Indo-China would provide the Japanese with:

1—A jumping along for Japan's long-dreamed expansion southward with air and naval bases within 600 miles of Singapore, guardian of British and Netherlands possessions in the South Pacific.

2—A relatively cheap victory for the war-weary people of Japan and ample stores of foodstuffs, particularly rice, to offset the shortages which have put the nation on reduced rations.

3—Badly needed raw materials for the industries of Japan.

4—An impediment to American assistance to China and deployment of Japanese forces in strength for an attempt to cut the Burma road, one of China's last remaining supply lines.

5—A diversion which Japanese and Germans might hope would insure the United States fleet being kept in the Pacific.

6—An extended area of action for Japan's "Greater East Asia co-prosperity sphere," the declared objective of which is the establishment of an independent and self-sufficient economic bloc comprising an extensive stretch of territory in the Far East to be dominated by the Japanese.

By moving into Indo-China the Japanese would also retain, it was said, both its Axis obligations with Germany and Italy, and the recently signed neutrality pact with Soviet Russia, pending developments in the Russo-German and Anglo-German wars.

The tri-partite pact pledges Germany, Italy and Japan to co-operate in regard to their respective ambitions in Asia, as well as in Europe.

Gas Effective In Combatting Ants' Invasion

Banned by international law for use in warfare between armies of men, gas attacks are the most successful means of eradicating armies of ants, according to officials of the provincial agriculture department. Their statement was made following receipt of reports that ants are over-running many Alberta lawns and causing widespread destruction.

Officials have given out the following method of attacking the ants by gas warfare: "Push a stick into the centre of the ant-hill to a depth of four inches and rotate it until a two-inch hole is made. Pour one tablespoon of carbon bisulphide into the hole. Then plug it with damp earth. The gas will work downward into the nest and exterminate the ants . . . When ants invade a dwelling, a little sodium fluoride sprinkled on the floor they cross will destroy them."

It is pointed out that both chemicals mentioned are poisonous for humans and therefore they must be used with the greatest caution.

Tobacco Price Not Enhanced Counsel Says

Selling arrangements entered into between manufacturers and jobbers were not such that they fixed or enhanced tobacco product prices, nor did these arrangements unduly restrain competition, control the production of tobacco products or limit tobacco production, Lionel W. Forsyth, K.C., chief defence counsel for 36 manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers, submitted as he closed his eight and one-half hour address Wednesday to the jury trying alleged "tobacco combine" charges.

Mr. Forsyth submitted there was no evidence that exorbitant prices were ever charged for any Canadian tobacco product. The crown, he submitted had failed to bring before the court any evidence that would indicate that any tobacco products had been sold above a fair and reasonable price.

He asserted that the only prices fixed had been fixed through open competition in the trade, and said there was no evidence to the contrary before the court.

NOT DETRIMENTAL

He said that if the crown wanted to show that selling of cigarettes at one cent each was detrimental to the public interest, it should have been called to so testify. He admitted that agreements had been reached between manufacturers and jobbers governing fair trade practices, but submitted that these agreements were not detrimental to the public.

These agreements, he continued, did not limit or lessen competition, did not enhance prices, and there is evidence before the court to show that the prices charged for tobacco products were in force long before the fair trade agreements were effected.

That price, stated Mr. Forsyth, had been reached in open competition, and there is no evidence that manufacturers ever got together to fix the price.

He recalled to the jury that the tobacco selling arrangement had been submitted to the federal department of trade and commerce, that a fair trade board had been applied for, and submitted that if the agreement had been one designed to be detrimental to the public there actions would not have been taken.

CORRECT PRACTICES

He submitted the jury must accept at its face value the evidence that the selling arrangement was adopted to correct certain unfair trade practices.

S. M. Field, K.C., representing the H. Simon and Son Company, Montreal, said there was no evidence to connect his client with any agreement, legal or illegal, and contended the charges against the company should be dismissed as the crown had failed to make out a case against his client.

Checking Improves Working Conditions

Under provisions of the hours of work and wages regulations, officers of the Alberta board of public relations, during June, made 766 inspections, according to Clayton Adams, board chairman. Resulting from these inspections benefits totalling $2,006 accrued to 77 male and 48 female workers.

In the current year there have been 3,020 ispections, resulting in improved wage conditions for 721 male and 73 female workers. The amount by which their wages have been increased is $13,582. In the entire 1940 calendar year, inspections totalled 9,529.
